...IOB STORMS JAIL; TROOPS ARE CALLED

... Guns Mounted on Four Corners Approaching Tampa, Fla., Prison When Angry Crowd Demands Confessed Slayer of Five Persons

BATTER IN WALL IN ATTEMPT TO REACH PRISONER

Overpowered While Tear Bombs Are Hurled Without Effect; Variety of Reports on Wounded and Dead Are Received During Riot

...A, Fla., May 31—National guard troops were ...ed out early today to protect the county jail here ...as stormed during the night by a mob seeking B. F. ... alleged confessed slayer of five persons.

... soldiers were called out at 3 o'clock this morning ... dozen persons had been wounded, one probably ... in an exchange of shots with deputies inside the jail.

Four local companies of the national guard patrolled the vicinity of the jail today with machine guns mounted on the four corners approaching the jail. National guard companies from Lakeland and Bartow were enroute to Tampa, having been ordered out by Gov. John W. Martin shortly after the state's attorney here had appealed to the executive for aid to quell the riots.

Batter in Jail Wall

Despite assertions of Sheriff Hiers that Levine, alleged to have confessed he battered Mr. and Mrs. Herman Merrell and three of their children to death while they slept, had been spirited away to an unnamed destination, crowds began gathering before the county jail here last night.

By midnight the mob had swelled to several thousand persons. Armed with a huge timber that resembled a telegraph pole, a crowd of men advanced on the jail and began battering at a wall in an effort to gain entrance. The police on hand who sought to interfere were quickly overpowered.

Deputies inside the jail hurled tear bombs at the storming mob outside but without effect and the firing opened after the men with the huge piece of timber had battered a large hole through one of the brick walls.

Variety of Rumors

Reports regarding the number of wounded conflicted today. An even dozen were reported to have been struck by the several thousand shots fired during the riot. A man named Pittman was reported killed but police and others could not definitely confirm this. The dead body of a deputy hanging over the wall of the jail also was reported seen by spectators.

When the mob seemed in complete control this morning despite the combined efforts of the police, fire department and deputy sheriffs, the state's attorney telephoned Governor Martin for aid.

The executive immediately ordered out the militia in Tampa and directed military heads in Lakeland and Bartow to march to Tampa immediately with their ...

The mob demonstrations came in the wake of the Cleaver murders last week when an intruder entered the home of Herman Merrell, a carpenter, and fatally injured him and his wife and three young children. A fourth child a few-week-old infant, also was badly hurt by the intruder but remains alive.

Levine was taken in custody shortly after and after several severe grillings he was said by police to have confessed to the crime.

EPWORTH M. E. IS FILLED FOR CLASS SERMON

Rev. A. W. Swan Delivers Address to Harding High School Graduates

UNIFORMLY ATTIRED

Seniors, Dressed in Cap and Gown, Occupy Center of Church Auditorium

In his commencement sermon, "The Flaming Torch," delivered by Rev. A. W. Swan, pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church, before an overcrowded auditorium Sunday night at Epworth M. E. Church, Reverend Swan said in his opening paragraph, "To you who are now graduating from the public school system of your country, is now passed a burning torch, the custody of which is the highest obligation that can be bequeathed to you. This is the gift of every older generation to every younger one."

The graduates, uniformly attired in caps and gowns of gray with white collars, occupied the center of the church. They had previously selected Reverend Swan to make the address, annually given before the Harding High School graduates by the minister of their choice.

Musical Program

The program also comprised devotionals in charge of Dr. B. L. George, pastor of the church, an anthem, "Te Deum" by Herman Kotschmar, sung by the choir, and a feature number, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" by Harry R. Shelley sung by a mixed quartet composed of Mrs. Florence Shaw Rutherford, Mrs. Leila Connor Moore, W. W. Koppe and W. E. Orcutt, who directs the choir.

The delightful organ numbers, played by Miss Maye Evangeline Lawrence, were "Prelude and Fugue in C Minor" by John Sebastian Bach, "Sea Sketch" by Frank Howard Warner, "Shining Water" by Rudolf Friml, "Processional March" by Edward Read, "Pastorale" by James H. Rogers, and as a recessional, "Ceremonial March" by Cuthbert Harris.

Reverend Swan urged the graduates to "realize the value of their heritage—the privilege of carrying on the torch," which he deemed of utmost importance and influence, a heritage dearly given and carried on from year to year at great cost, and finally given to them that they, in their youth and power, might better guard the sacred trust.

Like Relay Race

"Human life, like every worth while enterprise is a co-operative sacrificial endeavor," Reverend Swan said. "It is like a relay race in which at tremendous cost the sacred torch is carried and flung anxiously from the hand of one runner to the next. Nothing must hinder the faring forward of the flame.

"You are bearers of a flaming torch. This should be your paramount consideration in this hour when, in the midst of commencement festivities you turn yourselves to the sobering, consecrating thoughts of religion. For religion is like a torch. It is light and a flaming light.

"If you have not found out, in terms of whatever creed or church most grips your imagination and moves your heart, your country has somehow failed in educating you.

Religion Important

"Why should you receive the flaming torch of religion as a glorious heritage gloriously to be carried? For one thing, religion is important, influential. You have all read Beatrice Fairfax and Loretta Joy's love columns in the newspapers. In response to one of them, a boy wanting to know how he might become acquainted with "nice girls" in a strange city, Mrs. Fairfax said, "Go to a church, attend Sunday School, young people's society, and attend social affairs, thus gaining entrance to the finest social circles in the city."

"That was sound advice. For the church holds a position of respect and tremendous influence in a social direction.

"So is religion important because of the psychic influence of its ideas. None dare say what transformation religion can not work. Things of the most inglorious and grotesque origins by it have been made beautiful and holy. Some pseudo-scholar traced the Lord's supper the other day to cannibalism and tribal customs of mixing libations of human blood. Be it so. How wonderful then is that influence which has taken the most gruesome folk-custom and refined and sanctified it!

Second Reason

"There is a second reason why you of the coming generation should receive and carry the flaming torch of religion as a high and sacred trust. It is not that religion is so important in the present. But it has been given to you at such great cost in the past."

Reverend Swan cited many times in the history of the church and of our country when it had been a struggle to carry forward the torch and closed his discussion with the words, "And we are not worthy to be beneficiaries of our heritage if we do not take some part in it."

Third Reason

As his third reason why the graduates, at present at the threshold of social responsibility, should bear the torch, Reverend Swan cited "It is not only because it is important, because its transmission from the past has been so costly, but because young people are of such promising possibility in the future.

"Ten of the former graduates of this town called themselves to the Heavenly host, ten young lives, among the latest and young of the ranks of a doubtless, honored, ... of brave, fair ... like this, the ... [illegible]

JAPAN IS PREPARING TO PROTECT CITIZENS

Likely That More Troops Will Be Dispatched to China

Tokyo, May 31—Increased concentration of Japanese soldiers in China was believed near today.

The tide of battle is turning against the Mukden troops, upon whom Japan is relying for protection of her citizens in Shantung, Consul General Yata at Tsingtao reported today.

Two thousand Japanese soldiers have already been detailed to Tsingtao. Two additional battalions of 2,000 men will be sent to Tientsin soon, it was believed.

The disturbance in China is reflected here, not only in the busy ministries of war and navy, but also in the general alarm for safety of Japanese citizens. The empror, personally, is watching the Chinese situation. He sanctioned the dispatch of the Manchurian garrison to Tsingtao, and today granted audience to General Suzuki, chief of staff, for a report on the progress of events in north China.

Along a 25-mile front, forest fires were reported sweeping over Saghalin today. Several persons, unaccounted for, were believed to have burned to death. Many houses lying in the path of the fires were destroyed.

All 15 Balloons Starting From Akron Yesterday Are Still Aloft, Reports State

Seven Huge Gas Bags Reported Nearing Canada and Other Eight Floating Northeast Over Lake Erie; Syracuse, N. Y., Sights One of Contestants Today

Akron, May 31—Officials of the national balloon race which started from here late Monday, today had received reports from two of the 15 entries, all of which were believed to still be aloft. The two reporting were Navy No. 1, over Rochester, N. Y., at 7 a. m., and the Detroiter No. 1 reported "going strong" over Gratz, Pa., about the same time. Each point mentioned is about 375 miles from Akron, according to officials.

Lieut. T. W. Settle is listed as pilot of Navy No. 1 with Chief Boatswain's Mate George Steeban as aide, and Charles D. Williams, Jr., is listed as pilot of the Detroiter No. 1 carrying G. W. Legallen as aide.

These latest reports somewhat discredit earlier reports that all of the balloons are over Lake Erie, some even as far as the Canadian shore, although air currents might have forced certain of the entries back over the southern border of the lake into the United States. Seven of the huge gas bags had been reported nearing Canada and the other eight floating northeast over Lake Erie.

Syracuse, N. Y., reported a balloon, believed to be one of the 15 national contestants, flying over that city at 8:40 o'clock this morning. The bag could not be identified and race authorities here had no official report, they said.

The Scripps-Howard balloon, according to reports received here at 11:30 a. m. was sighted shortly before 11 o'clock 40 miles from Buffalo, N. Y., over Lake Alexander, headed for Lake Ontario, and on a direct line toward Canada.

NINE KNOWN DEAD IN KENTUCKY FLOOD WATERS

Hundreds Homeless and Southeastern Part of State at Mercy of Torrent

Prestonburg, Ky., May 31—With nine known dead, scores of homes demolished and hundreds homeless southeastern Kentucky today was at the mercy of the feeder waters of Big Sandy River in five mountain counties.

Toms Creek took a toll of three lives, all members of one family, at Paintsville, Johnson County, Monday, when two women and a boy drowned as they fell from a log foot-bridge to escape waters which threatened their home.

Six were drowned in Letcher County at Roxana and Elsieconl, while 15 homes are known to have been destroyed at Wayland, Garrett and Fleming near here.

Those reported drowned at Paintsville are: Mrs. Maude Bailey, 40, wife of Dr. T. B. Bailey; Mrs. Agnes Bailey, 80, his mother, and W. B. Bailey, 11-year-old son of the physician.

At Roxana Mrs. Green Callahan and her two children and two unidentified men were drowned, while at Elsieconl Mrs. Chester Fields was a victim of the raging mountains streams.

Telephone service to Whitesburg, seat of Letcher County, has been suspended, and nearby points at Norton, Va., Harlan and Hazard, Ky., and Williamson, W. Va., report telephone service into the wind and storm swept region of the mountains has been discontinued.

CHANGE PLANS

Lita Grey Ready To File Deposition in Suit Against Chaplin

Los Angeles, May 31—Regardless of whether newspapermen are barred from the hearing, Lita Grey Chaplin was prepared to give her deposition today in her divorce suit against Charlie Chaplin.

Last week, Mrs. Chaplin refused to answer questions propounded by the comedian's attorneys when an attempt was made to have reporters excluded. Chaplin's lawyers obtained a court order directing the actor's wife to show cause why she should not answer the interrogations or be held in contempt. The contempt hearing was scheduled for next Thursday.

A change in plans by her attorneys yesterday brought the announcement that Mrs. Chaplin would appear this morning in the office of Lloyd Wright, Chaplin's personal counsel, to answer all "proper questions."

Want to Know About Black Hills? Well, Here It Is

Washington Correspondent Gives "Low Down" on Historical Background

BY CHARLE P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 31—"The Black Hills of South Dakota" is the way some folks refer to the spot on the map which President Coolidge has tentatively picked for his vacation this year.

Who the heck ever heard of the Black Hills of anywhere else?—except possibly the Black Hills of Dakota Territory, before they split it into two states.

Gosh, what shock to an old timer!—to think that the Black Hills have to be identified!—for fear somebody'll mix 'em with the Alps or the Himalayas or the Ozarks.

OLD timers seldom spoke of 'em as the "Black Hills" anyway, except to tenderfeet, who didn't know their geography.

The Indians did originally name 'em the "Black Hills" all right, because of the thick pine growth that gave 'em their brunet complexion until the settlers skinned all the timber off. It may have grown up again now, for all I know, but they were blonde the last time I saw 'em.

When an old timer mentioned 'em he called 'em simply the "Hills" and every other old timer understood what he was talking about.

IF President Coolidge had gone out to the "hills" 30 years sooner he not only would have seen something of the west—he'd have seen the regular old woolly wild west, where men was men and all that kinda stuff.

Deadwood, mind ya, was the metropolis of the "Hills" in them days.

When you've said "Deadwood," even as lately as the early '80's, you've said a mouthful.

It had a couple or three thousand population, but my! It was civilized.

And tough!

Layout games running wide open. A red light district that made Chicago traveling men's eyes bulge out. The leading saloon was named "The Buckets of Blood," and it was darned appropriate.

The state, admitted in 1889, didn't even have a law against gun toting until four years later and as long as the Deadwoodites toted 'em they used 'em. They didn't stop toting 'em, either, just because there was a law against it, until they got good and ready.

BUT of course the reign of law and order spoiled the country eventually for live he-men.

Not so long befire that—plenty of people who aren't so very old can remember it—the "hills" were full of road agents and there were lots of 'em down on the northern Nebraska prairies, toward Chadron.

Gold was coming out on every stage then, bound for Sioux City and Omaha, and it made lovely pickin's for a guy who was handy with firearms and not too skeery of a charge of buckshot in his innards.

Still a little earlier there were bad Injuns. Your back hair wasn't any too safe if you went pokin' around by your lonesome.

WILD BILL HICKOCK was bumped off at Deadwood.

Capt. Jack Crawford hung out there.

Doc Middleton's gang's old stamping ground was in the neighborhood.

But shucks! President Coolidge is about as liable to see some of that kind of stuff or run into that kind of people in the "hills" now as he is to see 'em burn a witch at Northampton, Massachusetts. All he'll meet up with will be a lot of modern conveniences and a little mild tradition.

S.S.S. is unequalled for restoring strength

In these days of keen competition, the people who are run-down, quickly fall behind—while their healthy, vigorous rivals, who comply with laws of Nature and keep their blood supply rich and nourished, get ahead.

Good blood is health's foundation. When your blood is poor, you are dull, weak, slow and pale—your brain cannot work effectively.

But you glow with health when your blood is rich and strong! You look vigorous! You fairly sparkle with winning magnetism!

Don't despair if others are forging ahead of you. S.S.S. will help you. It will bring back your appetite; will help Nature build up your red blood corpuscles. This is how S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished. S.S.S. is time-tried and reliable, and is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality. It is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.—Adv.

COLLEGE HEADS PUT APPROVAL STAMP ON YOUTH

Presidents of Institutions Deny Younger Generation "Going to Dogs"

(Editor's Note:—This is the first of two articles on "Modern Youth" as viewed by New England college presidents. The second article will appear Wednesday.)

(Copyright, 1927, I. N. S.)

Boston, May 31—Modern youth is "O. K."

The college president says so.

'Prexy' knows for he has close contact with the thousands of men and women of tomorrow—the seniors of today.

Presidents of New England colleges deny in no uncertain terms the current criticism that America's younger generation is literally "going to the dogs."

International News Service sought the commencement-time views of educators on the college graduate of 1927 and the so-called "flaming modern youth."

"The present undergraduates, as I know them, are as fine a lot of young men as have ever been at Bowdoin," declared President Kenneth C. Sills of that institution of learning which is situated at Brunswick, Me.

Doesn't See Difference

"I have no patience with the current criticism that the younger generation is going to the dogs," he continued. "The present graduate is perhaps a little less amenable to discipline, a little more frank, a little more questioning than was his brother of 10 or 20 years ago; but human nature changes very slowly and I fail to recognize any great difference."

President Clifton D. Gray, of Bates College, at Lewiston, Me., stated:

"The college graduate of 1927 is very little different from the college graduate of 1927 or 1897."

President Ralph Earle of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, at Worcester, Mass., formerly a member of the war college at Newport, R. I., and one of the best known among the retired officers of the United States Navy, said:—

"There really is no radical difference in the college graduates of today and those of 10 or 20 years ago. Human nature has changed little, and if we see any real difference it is due simply to change in general conditions."

Serious Minded

The present generation of college students are "serious-minded, hard working and trustworthy" in the opinion of President Paul Dwight Moody, of Middlebury College.

He continued: "In my judgment they compare very favorably with the students of 10 or 20 years ago. This seems to be the opinion of most of those with whom I have had opportunity for discussing the matter.

"The impression conveyed by the alleged humorous college publications in no wise indicates the true status of students' opinion in various matters and is, unfortunately, most misleading.

"With the difficulty found in entering college in the present day owing to the demand exceeding the supply, and owing to the fact that most of the colleges are raising their standards, I believe that the present generation is a serious-minded one and despite the things which are said concerning them that they can be trusted and many of us who are in close contact with them, particularly here in the east, have no deep anxiety. Of course, we are not qualified to speak of conditions in the west, where much of this sort of thing is reported, probably exaggerated and incorrectly."

(The so-called "college suicide wave," college drinking and the much-discussed question: "Are colleges turning out too many professional men?" will be dealt with by college presidents in the second article Wednesday.)

HIGH COST OF BOOKS WORRY OF LIBRARIES

Cincinnati, O., May —The "high cost of upkeep" applies as well to books as it does to motor cars and a lot of other things, according to figures made public by the Cincinnati Public Library for the past fiscal year.

The report shows that of $120,000 expended, $19,000 went for repairing books in use, and $101,000 for new volumes.

Book binding has been a steadily declining art for decades, the librarians assert, and the results are seen in the high upkeep cost. Modern bindings wear out quickly, despite precautions taken with all new volumes before they are put in circulation, to extend their life. Treatments of shellac and wax are given all new books received before they are put on the shelves.

"SLIM'S" MOTHER TELLS OF SON'S FLYING FEATS

LINDBERGH ARRIVED AT LINCOLN, NEB. FLYING SCHOOL IN A DILAPIDATED MOTORCYCLE
ON HIS FIRST PARACHUTE JUMP SLIM" TOOK PICTURES AS HE DESCENDED
WHEN LINDBERGH WAS "GYPSY" FLYING HE AND HIS FELLOW FLIERS USED TO HORRIFY THE CROWDS BY HEAVING ROLLS OF BURLAP OVERBOARD WHICH RESEMBLED MEN

[No series of stories in years has so caught the public's fancy as this on Lindbergh, the hero-aviator, as told by his mother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, to Miss Bonita Witt. This is the fifth of 10 instalments.]

BY BONITA WITT

(Copyright 1927, by Central Press Co.)

INSTRUCTORS at the Lincoln, Nebraska, flying school who gave "Slim" Lindebrgh his first flying lessons, little realized the blonde, rangy youth who rode into Lincoln one morning on a dilapidated motorcycle was in a few years to become internationally famous as the first man to make a non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

"Slim" paid his tuition with the $500 earned farming, and from the beginning proved an adept pupil.

One of his instructors there says, "Slim was a natural born flyer. All he had at the time was a battered motorcycle, a born instinct for flying and a quiet nerve that wasn't afraid of anything on earth."

It wasn't long before Lindbergh became fairly proficient in piloting a plane and he decided to do "gypsy" flying or barnstorming as it is sometimes called—that is, flying about from town to town doing stunts, parachute jumping, wing walking for anyone who desired his services.

Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, the aviator's mother, in telling the story of his life, says it was at this time that Charles first came to be known as a "daredevil."

"Charles and his fellow aviators used to play tricks on the crowds that came to see them perform," Mrs. Lindbergh tells, with a twinkle in her eye. "They would toss rolls of burlap out of their planes, pretending a birdman had tumbled overboard, to the horror of the onlookers. Yet," she is quick to assure, "he never was foolhardy or careless.

"He did a great deal of parachute jumping and wing walking without my knowledge," Mrs. Lindbergh admits, as she tells of learning of his hair-raising stunts from his companions.

Describes First Jump

"Some of Charles' friends told me of his first parachute jump," she continues. "He wasn't satisfied with merely jumping from a plane several hundred feet in the air—on his descent from a ship in mid air, he took pictures as he and his 'chute' dropped earthward. He didn't tell me about many of his stunts because he didn't want me to worry."

Mrs. Lindbergh's love of the air is only second to that of her son. She accompanied him on several of his "gypsy" tours.

"Slim's" mother doesn't understand why folks thinks she is "brave" because she soars through the clouds with her son. "Brave, nothing," she remonstrates. "I love flying. Whenever my son asked me to take a trip with him I was never too busy. I go up in the air every time I get a chance.

"One day when I was visiting Charles in St. Louis, he and I took off, went up in the air several thousand feet, then descended to the ground. I couldn't understand why Charles had bothered to take me for such a short trip. Much to my astonishment aviators came rushing to the plane asking me if I hadn't been frightened. Then they explained that Charles had just accomplished one of the most difficult feats in aviation—a 'spot' landing—that is landing in a circle marked off on the ground. I'd been treated to one of the big thrills of flying.

"Charles always delighted in doing the unusual, the unlooked for thing. When he was expected to come from one direction he'd swoop across the field from another, sneaking up behind those who were awaiting him."

Mrs. Lindbergh is what one may term "crazy about flying." Happy-Go-Lucky "Slim" never was happier than when in his "ship." Those who know him say if now he would have to choose between his fame and flying he would grin and say, "Take your fame—give me my plane."

BAPTISTS FACE BIGGEST FIGHT AT CONVENTION

Question of "Old Fashioned" Religion Scheduled To Enter Session

Chicago, May 31—Faced by one of the biggest modernist-fundamentalist fights in years, thousands of Baptists gathered in Chicago today for the annual convention of the Northern church.

The question of "old fashioned" religion was to enter the floor of the convention as a result of resolutions adopted by a committee of the Baptist Bible Union of North America, appointed last week by that organization to "devise ways and means of combatting the encroachments of a predatory and tyrannical oligarchy" within that body.

The resolution demanded the submission to the membership of all Baptist churches the question of "open communion," involving baptism by any other rite than immersion and the expenditure of foreign mission funds to support of missionaries with modernist tendencies.

Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the Bible union, was confident the resolution would be adopted.

WANT PRESBYTERIANS TO SUPPORT "BLUE" SUNDAY

San Francisco, May 31—With the modernist-fundamentalist controversy over the control of the Princeton Seminary apparently settled in favor of the modernists, the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church was settling back into routine discussions today.

After three hours of impassioned debate, the liberal faction succeeded in passing a resolution which will place reorganiation work at the Princeton Seminary under one board. The fundamentalists also were defeated in their attempt to elevate to a higher position Dr. J. Gresham Machen, ultra-fundamentalist member of the Princeton faculty.

Leaders of the Lord's Day Alliance announced today their intention of endeavoring to get support of the Presbyterians for rigid and absolute observance of Sundays. The alliance hopes to make the Sabbath "blue" by securing passage of laws to prevent motion picture shows, ball games or other amusements and to prohibit the conduct of any business not absolutely essential on Sunday.

"KING BEN" TO TAKE STAND IN CULT SUIT

Condition Permitting He Will Be Brought into Courtroom on Stretcher

St. Joseph, Mich., May 31—"King" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David, will testify in the state's suit to dissolve the colony, it was announced today.

This announcement spiked reports that the cult chieftain would not go on the stand for a scathing cross fire of questions regarding alleged mistreatment of young girls in the colony.

His condition permitting, "King" Ben will be brought into court on a stretcher to face his accusers. But, if he is too ill his deposition will be taken at his bedside in the House of David with lawyers for the state and defense, newspapermen and others present, W. J. Barnard, defense attorny said.

At the same time the state announced they will fight any move to take Purnell's deposition at his bedside instead of bringing him into court.

"Purnell is shamming sickness for public sympathy," said Prosecutor George H. Bookwalter.

"I never thought he would take the stand but I suppose the damaging testimony in the past fortnight has thrown Purnell into a panic.

"We will demand Purnell's physical examination by three disinterested out-of-town physicians if they claim he is too sick to appear on the stand," Bookwalter said.

When you trade-in your used car

When you are ready to trade-in your present car, remember that after all you are making a purchase, not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply applying your used car as a credit toward the new car's purchase price.

These are basic facts:

1 YOUR used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 YOUR used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 THE largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; but sometimes it is not.

4 AN excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 FIRST judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

Reverend Swan brought his address to a close with the words, "Only Remember, of Him of whom it was said that He was the Light of the World, it could be said only because He was utterly consumed with His passion for God. And only if you burn up for your God can it be said of you in any sense that ye are the Light of the world."

TELEVISION, AIR TAXIS, FOOD IN PILLS BY 1950

Prof. Low in Forecast of 20 Years Hence Sees Wondrous Changes

London, May 31—Having accurately predicted the advent of the trans-Atlantic telephone, Professor A. M. Low, the famous English scientist and inventor, has turned his thoughts to what the world and its inhabitants will look like and be doing twenty years hence.

His conclusions are contained in an article in the London Daily Mail, in which he forecasts that in 1950 the televising screen will project world events before our eyes; we shall telephone across the ocean as casually as we telephone to a friend in the next street; artificial sunlight will pour strength into us as we sit; an aeroplane at the door will excite no more comment than an automobile does now; and we shall have to wear ear shields against the terrific noises.

Labor Saving Ideas

Labor saving ideas in the world of 1950 will be represented by the absence of dust-collecting corners, stoves, and chimneys, and the delivery of food from a community kitchen. If our meals are not absorbed in the form of pills, according to Professor Low.

"Mr. Jones, reading his morning newspaper in 1950," writes Professor Low, "will have lost his parochial outlook. He will be as anxious to know what happened in foreign countries as he is today to read the local news, because he will have been to them, thanks to facilitiates for cheap, swift, and comfrotably travel.

"If Jones is wealthy he will unquestionably make use of television and his room will be heated electrically by a system which will bring such luxuries within the reach of all.

"The man of the future will probably enjoy electrical treatment during his sleep, and artificial light, both health-giving and pleasant, will be so cheap that houses will be built without restriction imposed by a vain endeavor to locate the sun.

Advance For Women

"The next twenty years will undoubtedly see a great advance in the position of women. With the gradual evasion of physical disabilities, I do not believe that women will trouble to stay at home. I think that electrical cooking, cleaning, and heating will remove the drugery from domestic existence, and I believe that children will be educated on the quantity production scale after a psychological study of their natural tendencies.

"Women will cease to expect the suggestion of protection and will despise the weakness that is implied by any remnant of chivalry.

"I believe that within twenty years the languages of all nations will have partially blended as the direct result of inter-marriage and trans-European conversations."

D COMPANY CONDUCTS SERVICES AT CEMETERY

The soldiers were accompanied by a number from this city and from surrounding towns.

The garage man said our car wasn't quite ready. Perhaps he hadn't yet wiped his hands on the steering wheel.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT MEMORIAL DAY

American soldiers have fought and died in the past.

General McQuigg spoke in connection with the customary Memorial Day program given in a large open space in the northeast part of Marion Cemetery, where the branches of towering trees form a natural canopy of majestic splendor.

About 2,000 persons heard McQuigg's inspiring words, the band music and other features of the Memorial Day program.

Program Complete

Although in a threatening mood most of the day, the weatherman failed to spoil the day's ceremonies and the entire program, including the street parade which preceded the ceremonies at the cemetery, was completed in all of its details.

The day's observance will go down in history as one of the most notable ever held here. The throngs which visited the cemetery during the day numbered far into the thousands and other thousands lined the streets over which the patriotic procession passed on its way to the city's burial ground. The parade was remarkably beautiful and impressive as it passed over the line of march extending from Prospect-st. east on Center to State-st and south on State to the cemetery.

Cemetery Beautiful

The cemetery, always a picture of loveliness without special embellishments, was especially beautiful on this occasion with a wealth of flowers spread throughout the grounds as tokens of memory on graves of lored ones.

Local florists report that the sale of flowers for Memorial Day this year was probably the largest in the city's history.

Plans had been made for holding the closing ceremonies at Epworth M. E. Church in case weather conditions were unfavorable, and although the sky was clouded throughout most of the day, presenting an ever present danger of rain, no change in the original arrangements was necessary. The program was enacted on the open-air stage, draped resplendently with Old Glory.

Program in Detail

Col. George B. Christian, president of the day, had charge of the program, assisted by the vice president, Dr. James W. McMurray.

In addition to General McQuigg's address, the program consisted of patriotic numbers by several bands of the city directed by L. B. Stallard, appearance of the Caste Quartet, singing of Lincoln's cabin meeting, [illegible] by Charles Wolf, [illegible] A. CAPITAL BRIDLE PATHS LURE there are today in America a considerable number of people who would have us believe that the conflicts in which these men yielded their lives were wrong, that all wars are criminal, in fact that war is murder and that nothing good can come out of armed conflict.

"These people seem to forget that this is a very matter of fact world—that we have to deal with men and nations as they are and not as we might like to have them.

"Was it wrong, was it a crime for the colonists to take up arms to resist the tyranny and demands of a self willed king? Were the farmers at Concord and Lexington guilty of murder because they defended their rights, their privileges and their homes and by so doing laid the foundation for the greatest republic since time began?

"Did Lincoln violate his oath of office when he called forth over two million men to preserve the union and free the slave? Was McKinley guilty of wrong doing when he sent our army and navy to the assistance of a neighboring people and helped them to establish a government of their own?

"Was America a criminal when she raised the mightiest army that ever marched under the American Flag and sent half of it across 3,000 miles of submarine-infested sea to assist in preserving Christian civilization?

"Of course, to ask these questions is to answer them with a mighty No.

Scores Pacifists

"The trouble with the ultra pacifists is they are operating in the wrong hemisphere. Let them transfer their efforts to Europe and the east where wars for conquest and revenge have been the rule rather than the exception for more than two thousand years.

When the doctrine of pacifism and non-resistance has demonstrated its effectiveness along the Rhine, in the valley of the Danube, at the Golden Horn and on the banks of the Vistula, it will be time enough to try it out in the United States."

"Of course, no sane man wants any more war if it can be honorably avoided. This is especially true of the men who were in the World war. It has always been true of the great mass of our people.

"Our entrance into the World war was certainly not hasty. It was not until our flag had been insulted, our merchant ships sunk and our citizens murdered at sea that we determined to do our part in beating back the mad assault upon civilization.

Heirs of All Ages

"We of the present generation in America are the heirs of all the ages. More than twenty centuries have been required to develop the civilization and acquire the heritage that has been handed down to us.

Since the Leopold-Loeb trial, there's little chance that Clarence Darrow will arouse any controversy by declaring that there is a lot of bunk in this grand old world of ours.

It has been said that perfection is never attained in this old world of ours, which reminds us that the June dust always comes with the June brides and the June roses.

Up in Wyoming a veteran of the German army was granted a $2,000 tax exemption under a law passed by the legislature of that state which provided that exemption for "all veterans of the World war," without any restriction as to the army in which they served. It's our guess that the life of the Wyoming legislators is not, at present, exactly a bed of roses.

It seems to us that the disclosure resulting from the raid on Arcos, Limited, over in London, that soviet funds were expended in propagandising the "Hands Off China" policy, might prove a bit embarrassing for some of the enthusiastic friends of Russia over here who have been advocating the same policy.

The fact that Lindbergh had only sufficient gas left to carry him for a few hours doesn't mean that he was so near the danger line in the matter of fuel as might be taken on first thought. He passed over a goodly lot of solid earth, it will be remembered, before he landed

London tailors take the view that men's legs are not sufficiently symmetrical to display in knee breeches, but what of that? The girls have demonstrated that a little matter like lack of symmetry is of no consequence.

The engine and four cars of a Big Four passenger train were derailed when a heavily-loaded truck was hit at a crossing near Springfield. However, it may be well to point out once more that it's the exceptional that makes the news. Very few motorists have ever been able thus to gratify their ambition.

Dr. George A. Reisner, Harvard Egyptologist, has found in the tomb of Herepheres, mother of Cheops, a mysterious clear, yellowish fluid, still liquid after thousands of years, which is thought to be the embalming fluid used by the ancient Egyptians, but this doesn't explain how our gentlemanly bootleggers ever acquired the formula.

The Message of General McQuigg.

It was good to have General John R. McQuigg with us again. His coming as the chief speaker of the Memorial day exercises at Marion cemetery was appreciated by the great audience which was held in closest attention by him.

General McQuigg always has a message and that of Monday afternoon was in no way an exception to the rule. His address was of high character, just such an address as we have learned to anticipate from him, easily one of the most eloquent in the true sense of the word ever delivered here in the observance of the day.

We have often thought that men, able men, men capable of speaking from the heart and from the knowledge gained by personal experience, can do no greater work for their country than that of combating the delusions of the pacificists, whose doctrines are a constant menace to the perpetuity of our government as an independent power.

Such was the address of General McQuigg. His refutation of the possibility of the dream of the pacificists was alike scholarly and effective, as was his denunciation of the others among us whose unfriendliness to American institutions are more pronounced.

The Memorial day committee is to be congratulated for bringing to us General McQuigg.

Wherein Lies Mechanical Economy.

It must be patent to all newspaper readers, as it is to all shippers and all consignees of shipments, that the railroads of the country are handling more freight and handling it with greater despatch than they have for years, if not in all their history. Some days ago we came upon a comment on the subject which attributed this to improved trackage, terminal facilities, improved signaling devices and greater efficiency in management and operation. All these have had their effect, unquestionably, but as great a factor as any is improved rolling stock—better and larger locomotives and cars

An editorial in the last issue of the Railroad Age throws light upon the merit of the latter view. It showed that, owing to the improvement in rolling stock, the railroads are actually handling more freight than ever before in their history, and that they are doing it with less rolling stock, both in motive power and cars. Whereas the roads had 64,742 locomotives and 2,283,908 freight cars at the beginning of 1922, they today had but 61,760 locomotives and 2,280,803 freight cars the middle of last month, at which time the latest survey of the rolling stock employed in hauling freight was completed.

But while the locomotives and cars show a falling-off in number, there has been a decided increase in power and carrying capacity. Five years ago, the average locomotive had a tractive power of 36,935 pounds and the average freight car a capacity of 39½ tons. As a result of the replacements of engines and cars, the average locomotive today has a tractive power of 41,951 and the average freight car has a capacity of 45.3 tons.

And what is true of the railroads is true up and down the line, in all forms of industry in which mechanical power is largely employed. We see it in agriculture, where a greatly lessened working force has accomplished a greatly increased production. We see it in our own industrial plants, just as we see it in plants throughout the country. We see it here in our own newspaper plant, just as it is being demonstrated in all progressive newspaper plants—the trend is toward improved machinery of greater producing capacity. Years ago the rule was adequate power, adequate facilities, to meet the normal demand. Today the rule is adequate power and facilities to meet the abnormal demand, to meet the peak load, with a surplusage above and beyond that to meet emergencies.

The world has come to the realization of the fact that nothing is so wasteful as running any machine at is maximum capacity; nothing so economical as running a machine a reasonable degree under its maximum capacity.

"Steamship Lines To End Rate War," reads a headline in the New York Times. Of course, just as we might have known, it refers to inter coastal freight rates. The only passenger rate war which has been on of late is that of the various transatlantic companies to determine which can exact the highest.

While Lindbergh's statement to the French, that a flight from New York to Paris is easier than a flight from Paris to New York, may have been highly diplomatic in that it could be taken by the French as an explanation of his success where their aces failed, we are confident that he made it simply as an utterance of an evident truth. In a word, we're getting to believe that Lindbergh's diplomacy, like his sense of direction, is instinctive. It will be hard to explain it otherwise.

A South Carolina village refuses to hire a school teacher till she enters into a written agreement not to smoke or fall in love and to sleep eight hours every night and take an interest in Sunday-school work. What chance has "Young America" when taught by a teacher, who, in this day and age, is willing to sign away her personal liberties like that?

Opie Read, who has appeared here in Marion as a delightful Chautauqua attraction, has been sued for $50,000 by the estranged wife of his son who accuses him of having alienated her husband's affections. THE WILL-O'-THE-WISP.

Eat Between Meals and Get Fat.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In a newspaper I saw these headlines: "Diet Carefully Else You'll Die! Women Warned." This heading was followed by a despatch from London, which said:

"Be careful how you diet or you will die." This warning is issued by a Harley Street specialist, commenting on the death of George Archibald, famous American jockey, through excessive fasting.

"The specialist declares several of his women clients have died recently through drastic dieting in an effort to achieve fashionable slimness."

There are two ways to go "cross lots" to the cemetery: One by taking drugs to get there, and the other by slow starvation.

This fad must stop. Thousands, probably millions, of women, are doing themselves harm through their efforts to have sylph-like figures.

It is possible to control appetite, to curb it, but to abuse it by disregarding the real needs of the body is wicked. Stop eating between meals and you have taken a long step toward normal weight. Confine your eating to what is served at the table and you are not likely to get fat.

I am convinced it is the nibbling, tasting and sampling between meals that causes the body to increase in weight and the figure to be lost. The candy box, the cookie jar, the sandwiches and cake at the afternoon reception, the soda, sundaes, the dish of ice-cream—all these between meals bites are the things which add weight. They can be omitted without particular effort. Then you may enjoy your regular meals and not feel guilty if you eat a lot.

The more slowly you eat, the less you will take. If all the food is bolted you take a good deal before your longing for food has been satisfied. If you eat slowly, chewing everything well, your appetite will be calmed before the meal is finished.

That sense of not being quite satisfied with the meal is likely to be due to the rush of eating. Everything is dumped and crowded in the stomach and the whole meal finished before hunger has been overcome. In consequence, you go and eat a lot of candy on top of a meal which in itself was really more in quantity than the needs of your entire body require.

Confine your eating to meal time, eat everything slowly and deliberately, and you may eat about everything you want without danger of overweight. Then the Harley Street doctors will have no need to warn us about the dangers of dieting.

Editorial Comment.

ILLS THAT MAY NOT COME.

That curious mental contagion which impels people to cross every conceivable bridge before they come to it seems to seize an unfair proportion of its victims from among the scientists. The latest sufferer is Professor Albrecht Penck, world famous student of the Swiss ice ages, now among us not to tell of vanished ice, but of foreboded ills to come. In 2227 A. D., Professor Penck thinks, the earth will hold 8,000,000,000 living human beings. No more can be supported, he concludes, by our globe's available soil. Famine will be continuous. The point of equilibrium between humanity and the food supply, long and earnestly feared by the Malthusians, will have arrived.

Possibly this will happen; possibly not. How can Professor Penck be sure? To carry forward through three centuries of unknown future the computations based on the world's present food supply or soil area or methods of agriculture is enormously to overstep one's data. Had the scientists of Queen Elizabeth's day attempted to foresee the food supplies of this, we can not doubt their fall into important errors. Transportation is now incomparably more rapid than was then foreseen. Food storage on a scale then undreamt of is now a fact. Frozen meat may now be kept for years, scurvy is among past horrors remembered but dimly, hundreds of new foods have been discovered or invented, crop yields have been increased enormously by fertilizers, by plant breeding and by other methods. What we must foresee is the unforeseen. Within Professor Penck's three centuries men may be taking foodstuffs from sunlight, from the atmosphere or from the power of the revolving earth. The only safe prediction about the future of man is that no limit dare be set to what he and nature may cooperate to do. Sufficient unto each century are the worries thereof.

Any explorer whose mind annoys itself habitually over bridges that may be absent from imagined rivers has missed his vocation. For men facing unknown geography, as for mankind facing an unknown three centuries, there exist two trusty comforters: Self-reliance and a faith in destiny. Let the professor be undisturbed. What mankind will do for food when, if ever, this planet holds 8,000,000,000 of us, we may safely leave to time, to science and to the unfailing ingenuity of man. — New York Herald Tribune.

WHAT'S TANGGILING?

A scaly monster of the prehuman ages of the earth, surviving into modern times in the almost unvisited swampy fastness of southern Java, is reported to the German scientific journal Die Umschau by Dr. P. Vaigeler. It is described as a one-horned rhinoceros, related to a form already known elsewhere in the East Indies but differing from it in that its almost naked hide is closely covered with small, hard, horny scales. It also has enormous front teeth, like those of a hippopotamus.

It has often been described by the natives under the name "tanggiling," which means "scaly beast," but Europeans were incredulous, regarding these reports as folklore. A few professional hunters among the whites had killed specimens; but they could obtain such high prices from the Chinese, who use the hide and horns of rhinoceros in medicine, that they were secretive about the business and did not share their knowledge with scientists.

Finally, however, photographs were brought out of the jungle, showing clearly that the animal is something entirely new to science. Now that its existence has been authenticated it is expected that efforts will be made to obtain living specimens for zoological parks.—London Answers.

HEALTH AND THE PURSUIT OF BEAUTY.

Every age has its paradoxes. Dr. Tauber, of Cincinnati, in a stimulating address at the convention of the American Medical association, directed the attention of his profession, as well as the attention of the women of the country to the paradox of subordinating physical well-being to well-seeming.

Women today are supposed to be impatient of sundry superficial conventions and man-imposed standards. They demand freedom of movement. They insist on comfort and on exercise conducive to health and all-around development. Yet, says Dr. Tauber, many of them pursue beauty through the use and abuse of cosmetics that are "fraudulent" as well as injurious to health.

Nothing is more natural or wholesome than the pursuit of beauty. The most emancipated woman will make herself look as attractive as possible. But beauty requires no sacrifice of health, no risk of disfigurement, no reckless use of cosmetics. The medical profession, which has fought successfully so many species of quackery, is turning its attention to the modern cult of beauty with a view to directing it into the safest channels. — Chicago News.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

An educator, making an address in Chicago, criticises high school students for failing to "think actively while they are reading." High school students have no monopoly on that bad habit. In the first place, most of us read too little that is worth reading. In the next place we read good books to rapidly and think too little while we are doing it. Stories of adventure, romance, made up of impossible people and impossible plots, are just time wasters. If a book has nothing to tell you about life and people, it is not worth reading. Of course, if you suffer from sleeplessness and a trashy story makes you sleepy, try it on

A few nights ago Dr. John J. Abel of Johns Hopkins university was given a medal at a banquet of middle western chemists in Chicago. Dr. Abel is the man who first produced pure adrenalin. Thus he made a vital contribution to the life and health of mankind. Little by little and day by day medical men and other scientific men are making discoveries—quietly in their laboratories—that are destined, perhaps slowly but surely, to bring about a revolution in the lives of men and women. All honor to those for whom the trumpets rarely sound

An Indiana woman died the other day at the age of seventy. She had undergone sixty-nine operations during her life. Don't coddle the human body too much. Don't be afraid to put it to work. It can stand vastly more strain than it usually gets. Given half a chance, the human body is a durable thing.

It isn't enough to learn the things our fathers knew. We must learn things for ourselves. We are not educated when we acquire the knowledge that has been gathered in the past. We must get new knowledge from the present, for the future. The newest idea in university training is to teach young men and women to think for themselves. The old system of filling students with information is out of date.

Speaking of new methods of education, Max Mason, president of the University of Chicago, says: "We want young, red-blooded sportsmen and women who will become excited over the problems of science. We don't want a student body just smothered with rote learning, information which may well be supplied by our many libraries."

Several weeks later another washout occurred, the section foreman wiring:

"Where the track was the river is."

In Japan, where whale flesh has long been an article of diet, the people eat even the tongue, an enormous organ weighing nearly 1,000 pounds, and the heart and liver.

In the first Boston directory, published 138 years ago, the names were arranged in order of prominence. Thus John Adams headed the list of "A" and John Hancock was the first "H."

In the early days of Christianity it was the custom to hang up hot cross buns as a talisman against evil. The buns were kept from one Good Friday to another, being regarded as a cure for various ailments.

In some parishes in England the old custom of distributing the "Pax Cake" is still kept up on Palm Sunday. Plain cakes are given in church, the idea being that those who have quarrelled during the year should "break the peace cake" together, saying "peace and goodwill," thus ending their disputes before the Easter communion.

For many months there reposed in the window of a shop in Bristol, England, an old blue and white ginger-jar which many collectors examined, but none would buy. Eventually the shopkeeper was glad to get rid of it for the sum of three dollars. Recently it was sold at auction in London for the enormous sum of $30,000. Experts found that it was one of the finest Hawthorn jars in existence

Vagrant Verse.

WHERE?

Where are the children that we were
Who questioned every leaf?
Where are the vanished years that hold
The record of our grief?

Where are my many-colored beads,
And pinafores of green?
Where are your braided pantaloons
Of dusky, velvet sheen?

Where is the music-box that hummed
With mystery inside?
Where is the donkey with the ears
That beckoned us to ride?

Where are the wreaths I wove for us
Of flowered tamarinds?
Where are the grapevines, turned to coils
Of silver in the winds?

Oh, you who come from out the past
To ask me if I care,
My answer lies with them for you
If you can tell me where!

Views of Those in Public Eye.

ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

Albert C. Ritchie was born at Richmond, Virginia, August 29, 1876. He studied law and became assistant city solicitor of Baltimore in 1903, later becoming assistant general counsel for the public service commission in the same city. From 1916 to 1920 Ritchie served as attorney general for Maryland and in the latter year took office as the state's chief executive. He has been elected governor for three terms. During the World war he was the general counsel for the war industries board. Believing that the farmer must be helped, he says:

"In discussing national and local problems of government, I would not have you think that I do not regard the agriculture problem as a national one, for I do. And yet in some phases this serves to illustrate my theme.

"I assume no thoughtful person wants a tariff adjustment which might damage industry, or freight rates which might impair the credit or service of the railroads or immigration laws which would bring more aliens than we could assimilate with proper regard for their own interests; but here I find that what the farmer sees is a tariff helping industry, immigration restrictions helping wages and a fair return guaranteed the railroads, and the western farmer asks, if government can thus help industry and labor and transportation, can it not do something now for the one-third of the population which he represents?

"It may be that the country will have to try some experiment or adventure, to test out something. At all events I can not believe that in this day of brain and energy and unprecedented prosperity some sound way to help the farmer can not be devised

"It already seems to me fairly evident that the problem is one for the business man and the transportation man no less than the farmer. Should not all three recognize and supply enough team work to get the answer?"

SHOWING SOME CHARMING SUMMER STYLES

EVERY summer we are quite sure that more charming frocks, hats and wraps than those designed for this year were never seen. Always they seem to surpass those of the season before.

On the left of the picture above is the very simplest of simple frocks—really an innocent and unsophisticated model. That is what one may decide from a first look, but examination does not quite bear out this impression.

The dress is made of pale blue crepe and it is cunningly trimmed with scallops of white crepe. These scallops outline the neck, the tiny sleeves which are just an extension of the shoulder, and the top of the bodice section.

The skirt is in three tiers, all finely knife pleated and edged with the scallops. A crocheted white sports hat is worn by June Marlowe, who posed. A close-up of this hat with its simple trimming of ribbon is shown (center).

A more elaborate but still sweetly guileless frock is pictured (right). It has that much discussed but seldom seen normal waistline and the very full sleeves which droop over the hands are another distinguishing feature.

It is made of imported French muslin embroidered in colors with scallops of silver. With the gown June Marlowe wears a large horsehair braid hat in a shade of pale blue to match the embroidery.

s smile was as inscru-

table as he could make it.

"Only Allah may see the future What is written will be."

He tucked beneath his burnouse the paper the kaid had handed him.

"Go," said the other, and turned on his heel, walking swiftly off.

"Truly, you are a wizard to make a man so bend to your will. How was it done?"

Allal Abdi had watched with great curiosity. A puzzled look was on the youth's face.

"He saw things, Hardi Flower that convinced him I am a wizard."

"But nothing appeared, and you talked mysteriously. You described in that dead, dull voice you used a wonderful temple in a beautiful valley, then you pictured in words my father's face and finally you described a battle. In the midst of the last I heard you say distinctly for the kaid to wake up. It is most mysterious."

Larry chuckled. Evidently his heathen companion knew nothing of hypnotism or its possibilities. Debating as to whether it would be wisdom to inform the youth, or to leave him in doubt, he finally decided to remain silent.

He drew out the paper the kaid had handed him. It was written in the Chleuh dialect and signed by the Marabout of Adra. But its contents caused Larry to pale swiftly. He read:

"To whoever this order reaches, this is authority to kill the bearer and any companion he may have."

That was all. It seemed simple enough in this land where perhaps only one man in five hundred could read or write; but what if that note had been handed to one of those who could decipher it? It was literally their death warrant.

It told him, too, that this was the Mountain of Shadows and he sensed that trouble lay directly ahead, trouble that would require all of his cunning and skill to overcome. It would seem that some sort of a trap had been laid for them. It was up to him to find a means to escape it.

Without saying a word to his companion, he suggested that they move onward through the late afternoon and Allal Abdi, with no word of protest, complied. Together they left the little cup. At midnight they paused, high on a mountain, across which their trail was leading.

A brilliant low hanging moon lighted the scene about them with a glorious radiance, but the mountains seemed full of yawning chasms, black as the sins of hell, those were deep, impenetrable shadows caused by the peculiar formation of the mountain, and it was these shadows that had given the place its name.

Far below them was a valley. At intervals they could discern tiny pin points of light. They sensed that these were camp fires. Evidently this was the guard that Omar had made reference to—the Marabout Camp it seemed, held the pass through the valley of the Mountain of Shadows.

Burning the sinister note in his pocket Larry shuddered briefly, not for himself but for the handsome, slender youth who was with him. Then, they made their camp in the very heart of the blackest shadow they could find.

Before he dropped asleep, Larry called to his companion.

"Truly, you are without fear, Hardi Flower, else you would not make your bed so far from mine."

Hearing no reply, Larry took it for granted that Allal Abdi already was sleeping and turning on his arm, he, too, dropped into slumber.

It may have been the soft swish of an express train in the gloom or it may have been the laugh of a mountain jackal again it may have been because the shadow in which they had made their camp had shifted so that the deep golden moon now flooded them in a brilliant glow that caused Larry to waken. Whatever it was he sat up a duello, full of a feeling that something was amiss. With his return to consciousness vanished utterly from his brain all he cared about him with piercing eyes.

He [illegible] reached for his automatic [illegible] beneath him and [illegible] his fingers [illegible] Allal Abdi had lifted [illegible] and following the affair [illegible] son Dak el Abda. A [illegible] but he made out a soft [illegible] a wadi lotus tree and [illegible] Allal Abdi, curled up like a [illegible] is seated with cream, [illegible] profoundly. A flicker of [illegible] side the youth told Larry that Allal Abdi had laid his light, Moorish sword close at hand. Doubtlessly, the lad also slept with a hand reposing somewhere near the keen-edged dirk he carried beneath his burnouse.

The scene seemed peaceful. Down in the valley the pin points of light still flared, indicating that the guards were still alert and watchful. He wished the moon had not shifted for their post on now was more or less exposed and any movement of theirs might—it was not impossible—be seen by the watchers below. He stirred restlessly, then rose cautiously to his feet, picking up the long sword and held it out to him. Whether it was near morning or not, he knew that sleep had departed from him for the time being and that to lie and wait would be a nerve-wracking task for which he had no liking. He strode softly nearer Allal Abdi and sat down, the sword across his knees then composed himself to wait until dawn broke across the mountain or his eyes again would fall heavy with sleep.

He fell to speculating on Allal Abdi as a slender, handsome youth, so much like a girl as possessing all the qualities of a great courage endurance and [illegible] to hardships that must [illegible] up with. He found himself recalling the boyish quality of the other's voice, the soft liquid tones that fell from the full, shapely lips when [illegible] spoke. Truly the youth was remarkable in many respects, and that ethereal beauty that was his might well have been envied by any woman anywhere.

Speculating thus he did not at first hear the soft noise that ruptured the blue black night back among the lotus trees; when it sounded a second time however, he turned his head, instantly alert. He heard it again a sound as though dead leaves and tiny twigs were being crushed under heavy feet. A sound as though a heavy body were creeping cautiously! He listened intently, fastening on the origin of the sound, then turned his gaze in that direction—a point to his left, where the lotus trees were thick-clustered, their heavy boles and spreading limbs making of the place a Stygian cavern.

Animated Contest

I MADE a most heroic effort to suppress a smile when Mary told me that nobody else understood Noel as she did. Her boast was so naive, so reflective of feminine vanity in general, that it was mirth provoking in the extreme. I was able to present a perfectly sober face to her however, and to comment truthfully:

"He is rather inscrutable, I fancy."

"That's because he has so pronounced an interiority complex, Mary said glibly. "But give me time, and I'll take it out of him. Haven't you noticed? Don't you think he's lots more to aggressive and self-confident than he used to be?"

This time I did not try to conceal a smile.

"He is less reserved, certainly," I said, "but the word aggressive—forgive me, Mary, but I cannot help smiling at that in connection with Noel."

She gave a determined little click of her teeth, looked at me steadily.

"He was aggressive enough one night, to suit anybody, she said significantly. He scared Jack Leslie almost too well."

"That is true, dear," I admitted, "but that isn't his natural bent. I don't think I should like him aggressive. Look out that when you get him made over, Miss Lincoln doesn't catch him. She appears to be quite mad upon the subject of the Veritzens, both son and father."

Mary gave a little laugh, which, however, held no particular mirth in it.

"She can have the father if she wants him for all of me," she said. "But, oh boy! can't you imagine the high hat Mr. Veritzen would put on if that dame tried to vamp him the way she's doing with Noel. Stage-struck flappers are no novelty to his life."

"That is so, Mary," I acquiesced demurely.

She shot a shrewd glance at me.

"Oh! I admit I was one, she said, "but you don't imagine I have any illusions about the way I got a hearing. If it hadn't been for you and Mrs. Underwood, I'd still be cooling my heels at that school in Detroit, or some other one just like it."

"You mean if it hadn't been for Mrs. Underwood," I amended hastily. "I had nothing to do with it."

"No!" Mary's rising inflection and side glance at me held embarrassing raillery. "Oh, of course I know Mrs. Underwood's an old side kick of his, and that after she saw me dance she persuaded Mr. Veritzen to give me a hearing—and seeing—but who persuaded Mrs. Underwood? Just answer me that."

She rushed over and hugged me impulsively, and I knew that the embrace and hurried hedging concerning my influence with Philip Veritzen had resulted from my involuntary frown at her badinage. But I was more disturbed than I cared to admit even to myself. Was it possible that this child's keen eyes had noticed what I thought was still a troubled secret in my breast—that the great theatrical producer was singularly indulgent to any suggestion or wish of mine?

The thought remained with me, a troublesome thing, long after Mary, a bit subdued, had gone back to her room. Her arch little air had quickened in me the realization that sooner or later I must face a delicate problem in my relations with my employer—I flushed as I mentally used the word, for it was one which the great producer himself had expressly barred from my vocabulary upon one occasion when I spoke of him in that capacity.

"Never use that horrible word again," he had said impressively. "It sounds comedy to me if I were a fifty horse and you pounding a time clock. No, you are my valued associate, the blending quality of my [illegible] personality [illegible]

[illegible] no one knew better than I, when the white squall [illegible] it would be an [illegible] to [illegible] against [illegible] been made to [illegible] [illegible] knew that I was [illegible] [illegible] in everything but [illegible]

Tribute Is Paid To Fallen Soldiers In Many Communities

Impressive Memorial Day Services Held at Kenton and Wyandot County Town

James W. Huffman, Columbus, Addresses Hardin County Throng

W. D. Moore, Superintendent of Schools, Speaks at Upper Sandusky

Kenton, May 31—Establishment of a functioning international court of arbitration, a judicial body to which nations of the world shall submit their differences and receive justice as an effective means of ending all wars, was favored by James W. Huffman, Columbus, member of the state public utilities commission, in addressing the community Memorial Day services in the Hardin County armory here.

Hundreds of citizens participated in the community gathering, the largest in the city's history, to pay tribute to the soldier dead.

Groups Cooperate

The services were arranged by the Cantwell Post, G. A. R., the Frank D. Bain Camp, U. S. W. V., and the American Legion. The few remaining veterans of the Civil War occupied places of honor during the patriotic meeting in the armory and later at the memorial services at the foot of Soldiers' Monument in Grove Cemetery.

Survivors of the three conflicts joined in decorating not only the graves of their own fallen comrades but those of the dead of the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812.

Appearing on the program at the armory were: Rev. E. G. Kuenzler, invocation; music by chorus under the direction of Miss Frances Harbison, remarks, Thomas Haggard, commander of the G. A. R.; address, James W. Huffman, and Rev. O. J. Yeisley, who presented the speaker.

Immediately following the armory services the participating organizations including the veterans, national guardsmen, auxiliaries, fraternal and civic groups, city officials, Boy Scouts and school children, marched to Grove Cemetery where the G. A. R. ritualistic services were conducted. Mr. Haggard, Dr. D. Emmett Johnson and William Leoffert, heads of the three veterans' organizations, acted as grand marshals.

Upper Sandusky, May 31 Cloudiskies and threatening thunderstorms somewhat altered the plans for the Memorial Day program here yesterday Despite the weather conditions one of the largest crowds in years was in town, visiting the cemeteries and paying tribute to the glorious men who fought for them.

By nine o'clock, the town had donned a distinctly patriotic air and both cemeteries, Old Mission and Oak Hill, were filled throughout the day with friends and relatives

Afternoon brought the special services for fallen comrades

At two o'clock the City Band appeared on the court house lawn and gave a short program, then heading a formation of the veterans of three wars marched to the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium where services were held on account of the uncertainty of the weather. It had previously been planned to hold the services at Old Mission and many gathered there, later learning of the change in plans. The gym was gay with flags and red, white and blue bunting. A raised platform at one end accommodated the civil war veterans, nine in all, three on the program and the band

Moore Is Speaker

The invocation was given by Rev. C. R. Williamson and prayer was offered by Rev. C. R. Allenbach. S. N. Clark, mayor of Upper Sandusky, as presiding master of ceremonies, announced that Earl F. Baum, Toledo, who was to speak at the services was unable to be present and W. O. Moore, this city, had been secured to make the annual address. Moore was then introduced Taking the history of the United States, which he declared is the most important section in the annals of the human race, he pointed out the part that the American soldier has had in making this land and the people of this land what it is. He declared that the American soldier has made it possible for us to have one language, one people, one flag He then carried the history of this country from the time of the landing of the white settlers, through the early struggles, the Revolutionary war, the civil, Spanish American and World wars on to the present date. In closing, he made the plea that we may forever call attention to the bravery of our American soldier; that we may teach our boys and girls the language of the American people, the institutions of America and the History of the United States of America.

Rev. Allenbach gave Lincoln' Gettysburg address Music consisted of selections by the band, a solo "There Is No Death," impressively sung by Mrs. W. Roy Haines, and numbers by a quartet composed of Fred Blaser, Mrs. L. W Naus, Mrs. Haines and Carl Hehr These numbers were well received.

BEHIND THE SCREEN

RUMORS have it that European royalty has been added to the list of Hollywood attractions. No less a person than His Imperial and Royal Highness Archduke Leopold of Austria cousin of the late Emperor Charles, has been persuaded to join the ranks of motion pictures actors.

Motion picture producers have observed American audiences and know the effect visits of European royalty have upon them. This has governed their decision to induce this particular member of royalty to appear in a film.

When Queen Marie of Roumania was in United States, an American film corporation offered her $25,000 for one day's appearance before the camera—so it is said. She declined, however, but there are others who are unable to resist the financial advantage which such contracts offer.

It is no small task this prince will have to perform. Suppose he will not be able to live up to the notions which American theater goers have of European royalty? Suppose he is short and stout and looks ridiculous in romantic parts? How if in the love scenes he is too reserved and does not portray the ardent lover that all princes are supposed to be? And his manners! Suppose he is just a quiet, reserved man and has none of the exaggerated ways about him that American motion picture audiences are led to believe all dukes, princes and counts have. What a disappointment it would prove to be!

Natalie Kingston, young Hollywood film player, has just been engaged for the starring role in the picturization of Gene Stratton-Porter's novel "The Harvester." She has just finished playing the leading role opposite Milton Sills in "Framed."

William Powell will have an important role in "Beau Sabreur," the sequel to "Beau Geste."

Ricardo Cortez has been selected for the romantic lead in Lon Chaney's starring picture, "Terror."

Richard Dix's next picture will be called "Flood Waters," a drama woven around the flooded area of Mississippi.

Warner Bros. will make a baseball picture entitled "The Bush Leaguer," with Monte Blue in the leading part. Leila Hyams, a newcomer to the screen, is to play opposite Blue.

George K. Arthur and Carl Dane will be starred in a railway picture soon to be made. At present Arthur is appearing in the leading role with William Haines in "Spring Fever," to be released shortly.

Marietta Millner, foreign importation, will play the lead in Thomas Meighan's next picture, "We Are Gamblers."

"The Devil Dancer" is the title of the movie for Gilda Grey's first production for Samuel Goldwyn.

BUILDING PERMIT

A permit for a dwelling to be built of brick and to cost approximately $5,000 was issued Saturday by City Clerk Keller to O. W. Gamble, 148 Baker-st. The dwelling will be built on Vernon Heights boulevard. A permit was also issued to W. J. Thibaut, High-st who will build a garage to cost $25.

FINED $10 AND COSTS

Charles Shultz, 236 Seffnersr, was fined $10 and costs by Judge Martin in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. Shultz was arrested at 12:30 Monday afternoon.

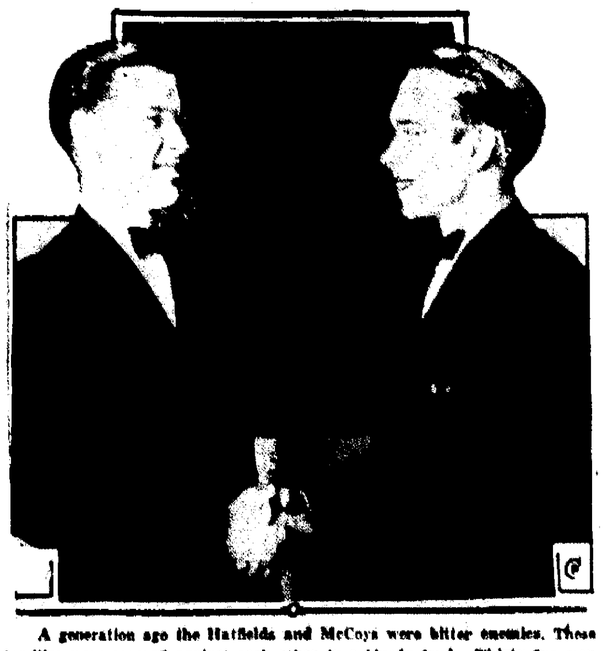
ANCESTORS IN FEUD—PALS NOW



A generation ago the Hatfields and McCoys were bitter enemies. These families were arrayed against each other in a bloody feud. Thirty-five men and one woman were killed in this lingering family war-fare in the Kentucky and West Virginia mountains. Legendary accounts among the mountain folk say the feud started over a razor-back forest hog. No matter how tragic the past has been the present finds a new generation of the two families as friends. Bob McCoy, left, of Wyoming County, W. Va., and Joe Hatfield, right, of Mingo County, W. Va., now are fellow students at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va. They are classmates, fraternity brothers and pals.

COMBINATION PROGRAM

Familiarity breeds TRUST

CONTRARY to the old adage, familiarity with some things breeds trust. Advertised products, for instance. The tradenames and firm-names you see regularly in this paper, by reason of their very continuity, kindle familiarity first and then confidence. These are the names that leap to your lips in market-places.

Familiarity of this sort is a thing to be cultivated. The more you know about an advertiser and his wares, the more you are able intelligently to invest the family outlay for the necessities of life. This truth is self-evident.

Read the advertisements in this paper. Read them as carefully as you would read something you had to sign your name to. They will save your shopping time and your shopping dollars. Go into the stores with your mind more than half made up as to what you want and what you will have to pay.

Familiarity with known goods breeds contempt for the unknown. Advertising begets familiarity

Midgley, Lester Vere Heuzenberger, John Wesley Simmons, James F. Houser, Elmer B. Fuller, William Bland and Hugh V. Smith, members who passed away during the last year.

Following the memorial ceremony, breakfast was served by the women of Lydia Chapter, No. 85, Order of the Eastern Star.

Services at the cemetery took place at 8:30 o'clock, beginning with the placing of two wreaths at the Harding tomb, one from Marion Lodge No. 70, with which the late president was affiliated, and the other from Warren G. Harding Lodge No. 250, Woodcliff-on-the-Hudson, N. J.

Senator Chappelear's address follows:

"We meet today to pay a loving tribute to the memory of our brothers who in the last 12 months have been called from labor and have entered into rest and to place a wreath on the tomb of our distinguished brother who learned so well the great lessons taught in Masonry and who in the noontide of life, while many designs, intricate and important, were drawn on his trestle board, laid down forever the working tools of life and passed on to his eternal reward.

"It is fitting that we should hold this memorial service at this time, just on the threshold of the "month of roses" when the whole countryside is redolent with the sweet perfume of flowers, when all nature is so full of life and beauty and speaks so eloquently of the resurrection and the life that is to come.

Sanctified Hour

"This is an hour sanctified by religion, patriotism and fraternity, a holy hour in which the vision of the patriot and the brother rises before grateful memory and affection. This devotion springs from a refined and tender sentiment so delicate that other interpreters than words are needed and for whose expression the utterances of music and the mute emblems of hope and faith are naked. These are worthy to be the chief orators in their solemn ceremony, and before their gentler eloquence human lips grow silent.

"I feel that it is a great privilege to be permitted to say a word at the tomb of our loved president, whom I was proud to call friend and brother; but must confess my utter inability to adequately express my true estimate of his lofty character.

"In my little printing office hangs a small picture which shows our dear friend at work on the makeup stone of the Marion Star, and I often look at it and think of him as president of the United States and contemplate the fact that this is the only country in the world in which such a thing could happen, and the further fact that this is the greatest nation in all history.

"This is an appropriate time and this is an appropriate place to install into the minds and hearts of the children the great possibilities before them in this land of freedom. To teach them that in this country, there are no classes, but that the humblest child in the humblest cabin in all this broad land has a chance in the race of life for riches, honor or fame.

Quotes Garfield

"President Garfield once said:

"'There is no horizontal stratification of society in this country like the rocks in the earth, which holds one class down forevermore, and lets another come to the surface to stay there forever. Our stratification is like the ocean, where every individual drop is free to move, and where, from the eternal drops of the mighty deep, any drop may come up to glitter on the top of the highest wave that rolls.'

Striking Example

"What a striking example we find of the truth of the statement in the history of President Harding. When he was struggling in a modest way to build up a little newspaper in Marion, what human intelligence could perceive that in two score years he would be the beloved ruler of the greatest government on the globe, that when the news of his death was flashed across the country millions of eyes would swim in tears, that all the way from the Pacific coast back to Marion—back home through the long days and longer nights, men, women and children would stand in line uncovered as his funeral train passed by on its way to this beautiful City of the Dead, and that the standards of all the nations of the earth would bow at half mast over the casket that contained his sacred dust.

Brothers Not Visible

"Our brothers are not visible to our mortal eyes and there is no response to our yearning call; but to the keener sense of love and memory they stand revealed, so near that we can almost touch their garments, changeless, immortal they tread strange spheres, beckoning us upward and onward to higher and nobler lives.

"Ardently and intensely the heart yearns toward the dead in our fraternity, and this yearning leads us to place garlands upon the graves of those who have gone to join the Celestial lodge on high.

"He Is Gone"

"We look into the faces of our brothers and say we know them, but do we? We look into the casket and see all that we ever saw of our friend; but we say, 'he is gone, he is not there.' The form and features we recognized in life are all there. Everything that distinguished him from every other man is there yet we sadly cry out, 'he is gone.'

"What does this signify? Simply this, we were mistaken when we said we knew him. It signifies that the part of the man that we loved and cherished is something separate and apart from that which is visible to the mortal eye and sensible to the mortal touch; that there is an immortal part that survives, that can never die.

Believe in Immortality

"As Masons, we believe in the immortality of the soul. If the destiny of man is the dust, then the empire of time is a pitiless despotism; his boasted dignity and glory shrivels into a soulless clod; the incentives to righteousness are destroyed; the fairest hope, and, therefore the fairest flower of mankind is forever blighted and the pulses of joy are hushed by the grave.

"The instincts of our nature, the wants of the race, the dearest revelations of the Infinite unite in protest against such untruth and cheer us to believe that beyond the grave we shall abide in grand consciousness of life. While the future state of man is shrouded in mystery, every nerve and fiber of our beings cry out the truthfulness of the world to come and the existence of a haven of rest for the children of God."

"That our beloved president and brother believed in this philosophy is attested by many of his statements, public and private. All his addresses breathe a spirit of reverence for the Great Creator and abound in hope of the life beyond the grave.

'At Sitka, Alaska, about 10 days before his death he said:

"'I wonder if it does not occur to you that in appreciation and in reverence for God over all, we ought to be a little more devoted, a little more sincere, and a little more earnest in our own religious activities, so that we may 'carry on' as God would have intended.'

Last Address

"Only a few hours before his death, speaking through his secretary, Mr. Christian, our dying president said to the Grand Commandery of California: 'We need less of sectarianism, less of denominationalism, less of fanatical zeal and its exactions, and more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practise, and a new and abiding consecration to reverence for God.'

"The simple act of placing garlands of flowers on the last resting place of our loved ones brings back a flood of tender recollections to every brother here.

Floral Tribute

"Flowers are always associated with memory. There is something in the very sight and odor of flowers that touches of chords of memory. We sing to those we love the songs they love to hear, and we place upon the graves of those who have gone before the flowers of which they were most fond. We hide the casket beneath a wealth of flowers that fade almost before the coming of another day. Yet, there is always some underlying reason for this particular manifestation of our love, and the secret is often made plain by the name of the flowers we use.

"And, thus it is that flowers and memory are twin sisters in life and may not be separated in death, and heaven would not be quite the same to some if they were quite sure there would be no flowers there.

"This day with reverent hands and hopeful hearts, we honor the memory of our illustrous brother who has gone before by placing upon his tomb the brightest and best blossoms of field and garden, as an evidence of our love for him and as a sign of our firm belief in the immortality of the soul, and of our confident hope to meet him and to greet him in the great beyond."

SHE'S PRINCESS MDIVANI NOW

President Desires This as Summer Home

REPORTED IMPROVED

James Wetzel, Willow-st, returned Saturday from Columbus, where three weeks ago he underwent an operation for goitre at White Cross Hospital.

Thousands Have Hepatic Torpidity And Don't Know It

If You Fear An Operation Because of Gall Bladder Trouble or Gall Stones, Watch These Signs

Perhaps you don't know whether you have this trouble or not, but if you are bothered with dizzy spells, headaches, shortness of breath, gas in stomach and bowels, pressure or sharp pains in right side that often shoot through to the back, coated tongue, bad breath, lack of ambition, weakness, nervousness and nights of restless misery—you probably are a victim of this health destroying menace that fills your system with poison and may mean a dangerous surgical operation unless checked at once!

Folks near or past middle life are especially liable to hepatic torpidity, gall bladder trouble or gall stones—and in the opinion of the writer one of the best things in the world for conditions of this kind is the regular home use of "Klax-Ko" tablets which Bradley Drug Store and other good druggists supply on a binding guarantee to refund their small cost if genuinely beneficial results are not obtained inside of a week. Klax-Ko tablets have brought new life and health to hundreds, and they must positively do the same for you or their use will not cost you a penny. Try them today.—Adv.

Church Filled

... was filled to capacity by ... a congregation made up of the Civil War veterans and their families and friends, as well as representatives of other patriotic organizations.

Dr. Darling took as his text the passage from Joshua 4:6 which reads: "What mean ye by these stones?"

The Cooper Post members met at the courthouse, Sunday morning, and were escorted to Wesley Church by groups representing Spanish-American and World War organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts, Woman's Relief Corps and Daughters of Veterans.

Roll Call Conducted

The memorial roll call, conducted by Charles Wiley, commander of Cooper Post and George B. Christian, Sr., adjutant, was an especially impressive feature of the service. A lily was placed on the altar and taps were sounded on drums in memory of William B. Denman, Thomas G. Crane, Joseph B. Crow and C. S. Seiter, members of the post who died during the last year. Similar tributes were also paid in memory of the late President and Mrs. Warren G. Harding.

Patriotic music, prayer by Rev. N. J. Reimer and a reading by Mrs. Mary Burroughs added to the impressiveness of the service.

Address in Part

The address of Dr. Darling follows, in part:

"This is a Lord's Day service rather than a week-day service devoted to heart expressions of love for and appreciation of those who have gladly offered themselves as willing sacrifices for maintenance of the highest and noblest interests of the land they loved so truly and so well.

"A man's life can not be measured by the mere product of his jaw-bone nor by that for which he wishes. We do not erect monuments to men because of the mighty acts they have proposed doing, mighty in their own thinking, but rather because of the achievements they have wrought, that have given them a right to live among the immortals.

"Today, monuments and tablets intended as such memorials reach back, not only to the time of Noah and Methusaleh, but probably to the time when Adam lovingly obeyed his wife, disobeying God and scattering the poison of sin abroad in the world.

"We are not here this morning for the purpose of eulogizing you as individuals. That you are well worthy and fully merit every honor bestowed upon you we know. Your merit has never been given to the full. We are thinking of you as we are thinking of your achievements in the days of '61 and '65. We are thinking of your comrades as with you when the weary march was made across the plains trough the valleys, over the hills, fording the streams and fighting your way to places of greater security where that was possible.

Recall Battles

"And today, as you of the Civil—or uncivil—war, as well as veterans of other wars represented here, will as you sit here once more hear the rattle of muskets, the whizzing of minnie ball, the rattling, withering fire of the machine guns and the roar of the heavy field artillery, you will once again hear the groan of your comrade in arms indicating that shot and shell have done their dastardly work and another comrade has fallen in death.

"Another spot of soil has been made sacred for all time to come and another home has a vacant chair.

Past Lives On

"In a peculiar sense, today we are standing between the living and the dead. We honor the dead, we reverence the living. "The past is gone, yet the past lives on. Was it that you delighted wa rin any case? I am sure it was not. You went not to war because you loved war, because you delighted in war or rejoiced in carnage.

"But rather it was that you believed in the importance and the efficiency and necessity of the union of states and the integrity and power of a united citizenship.

"Life is not the greatest offering we can make except that it be made as an offering for that which is noblest and best.

"Mary Antin wrote of America, especially thinking of these United States as the 'Promised Land.' I think we may well call it the 'Wonderland.' There can be no question that it is the most self-sufficient land on earth. It is no mean land. It was bought with a price, the price of much blood, many sorrows and inexpressible sacrifice.

Pay Heavy Price

"It is always so in war. Sometimes it is more so than others. A heavy price is always paid. Death writes in no small figures when he dictates terms of war.

"You have never fought because you hated your fellows but rather because you loved the land to you so dear, the nation in which you felt the human race was to have so large a share.

"God gave to us a man with a real purpose. Lincoln thought not of himself. His thinking was deep and pungent. But his thinking was for others.

"It was the nation, the Union, that he would preserve. The men who donned the blue, who offered themselves as sacrifical offerings upon the altar and in the interest of this Union, should each, not merely have his name written on the scroll of fame but also be heralded as man worth all the honor that all true citizens can bestow upon him.

Work Accomplished

"When these faithful ones fell their work, save as their achievements inspired others was done. You were spared and your work goes on. They showed men how to fight in behalf of principle. So did you. But it is also now yours to show how to live. If there is one task greater than another, this is the greater.

Dr. Darling then told of the experience in his own home during the Civil War, how his father responded to the call to arms and fought with the northern legions for preservation of the Union.

In closing, the minister said:

"Stand forth men of merit and worth. Live for the land for which you would have died. Burn 'Liberty,' the liberty of law and devotion into the hearts of the oncoming generation."

GRANT E. MOUSER, JR., SPEAKS AT PROSPECT

Prospect, May 31—Memorial Day was observed here yesterday.

At 9 o'clock in the morning members of the American Legion and the Boy Scouts motored to Otterbein, Mounts and other outlying cemeteries, and decorated the graves of soldiers.

At 1 p. m. the Prospect band headed the procession to the local cemetery. The column was composed of the veterans of the Civil War, members of the American Legion from LaRue and Prospect, and the Boy Scout troop. Only three veterans of the Civil War were able to be present, J. H. Eversole, J. D. McKinney and Mr. Ault.

Rev. A. E. Smith gave the invocation, recitations were given by Dora Mae Dill and Charles Mehaffey. J. D. McKinney sang a song, "To the World War Veterans." Grant E. Mouser, Jr., Marion, gave a splendid address, after which the service closed with the salute by the firing squad and "taps."

Services, under the direction of the American Legion, were held in the high school auditorium Sunday morning.

Music was furnished by the choir of the Reformed Church, with Mrs. L. L. Wottring at the piano. Rev. R. C. Windhorst of the Reformed Church scheduled to preach the sermon, was called to the bedside of his mother at Louisville, Ky. Rev. O. E. Smith of the Methodist Church substituted. Rev. Chapin pronounced the benediction.

SCHAFFNER

Toledo Goes on Home Run Spree; Trounces Marion

SPORT SAUCE

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB

AND now the howls about umpires in the city recreational ball leagues are coming in louder and more often than usual.

There's always something wrong. Either the officials don't know anything about a ball game or are partial to one side or the other. And then, sometimes the proper official doesn't even turn up.

Yes, the boys seem to be having a horrible time with the umps, but that's nothing compared to the night mare through which the man who engages the umpires passes each day when he attempts to get someone for the task.

The umpire question has always been the bugbear of the recreational ball leagues in Marion, and it probably always will be until some definite action in the matter is taken by the commission. As an rule, the officials who are secured served their duty well regardless of the howls which arise following each contest. Of course, if all teams want big league service, they are doomed to disappointment.

The cause of the undue clamor so early in the season is due to the fact that more than four games are being played practically every night, because of numerous postponement, and when seven or eight teams are engaged in combat at the same time, it's hard even to get anyone to take the undesirable job of umpire.

SECRETARY F. O. RUDOLPH brought the umpire question up for discussion at the first meeting of the commission. He had the task of getting umpires last year and knew how matters stood.

But the problem was not discussed from the angle of how hard it was to secure the officials. No one seemed to pay any attention to that. The question before the house was "shall we, or shall we not, pay the officials." And in connection with the financial question came the discussion of how much more authority a paid umpire would have than one was doing a "thank you" job.

After a half hour of wrangling, it was decided that since the paying of an umpire would not necessarily increase his authority, why waste the cash? The umpire should have supreme authority without pay. It had been accomplished during one season, so why wouldn't it be successful once more? That was the argument.

And what about getting umpires? Oh, that was easy for the commission? It merely made a motion and seconded it, moving that F. O. Rudolph be given the honor of calling in the officials.

M'Clain, Third Baseman for Olds Motors, Knocks Three Balls Out of Lot

Conroy Lifts One Over Left Field Fence During Slugging Fest While Sterns of Toledo, Also Annexes Home Run To His Average

BABE RUTH and Lou Gehrig pale into nothing in the young lee of McClain, third baseman for the Toledo Olds Motors. The Yankee sluggers can't come out two or three home runs a week but McClain, who, it is said, plays baseball Sunday, must clout two in one day to keep up his average.

And that's what he did Sunday at Lincoln Park when the Toledo outfit was handing Marion a terrific defeat of the season to the tune of 10 to 6. Five times he faced a Marion pitcher and three times the ball sailed over a certain board in the left field fence.

While McClain helped out his teammates considerable with his slugging the Athletic fans all they could to make the going easy for the visitors. Errors flew in such a way that Marion fans gave the poorest exhibition of fielding seen at Lincoln Park this season.

Toledo received eight hits and scored 10 runs. Marion was credited with 14 hits and made only six runs. The Athletics, however, were credited with seven errors while the visitors displaying their fielding ability by making only one bad move.

Lots of Hits

There was nothing wrong with Main's hitting except that the hits were scattered over too many innings and didn't count for enough runs to win the game. Conroy not to be outdone by the Toledo hurler, made four hits out of five times to bat, one of them being for a home run. He drove in three runs and crossed the plate himself on the circuit clout.

Main, pitcher for the Athletics, was knocked out of the box for the first time this season, leaving the mound following two consecutive home runs for Toledo in the seventh frame.

The Olds Motors seemed to have a mania for knocking the pill out of the lot. It may be conceded that they had a lucky day but a man must be something of a hitter to smack the ball over the fence at Lincoln Park. And when fans were beginning to think that one home run king on a team is enough, Stearns, Toledo first baseman, after striking out three times in a row, came to bat in the seventh inning with two out and two on base, and clouted the horsehide over the boards for four bases. McClain, following Stearns on the bat, put another over in the same inning. Main was jerked and Reese took over the side.

Errors Lose Game

It is even with all the home runs as to just whether Marion would have won a contest if Main had had any support in the infield. But Rizer and Backland, and even the pitcher himself, put on miserable exhibitions of what a baseball player should do. They could get on each other's wavelength and let the ball. And even when one got around they were unable to bring the man home. Taylor in right held to a fly in the seventh inning that would have been the third out before Toledo went on its home run spree. It was a

Two runs scored first. McClain started a home run in the second inning. The Athletics were leading at the end of the third, however, after batting for two runs. Bacon and Price each got on base with a single and scored the plate when Joe Conroy dropped a hot liner over the third baseman's head.

Everything was lovely until the first of the sixth when the Motors went on a batting spree and scored four runs. With a chance for a double play, Rizer fumbled a grounder and the scoring got under way. With two on base and two down, the home run king came to bat. Manager Bacon held consultation with Main and spectators expected to see a free ticket handed to McClain. Main grooved the first ball over the pan and McClain grooved that same ball over the left field fence for his second home run of the day. Two men scored across the plate in front of him. Four more runs went down for Toledo in the seventh inning and another was counted in the ninth.

Conroy's Home Run

Marion scored in the seventh when Conroy lifted one over the fence with Price on the sacks. Two more came in the eighth when Bersinger and Rizer walked, the former scoring on Rowan's sacrifice fly and Rizer coming home on Backland's two sacker.

The locals began a batting spree in the ninth frame but came to a sudden stop when Conroy was caught at third and Bersinger drove out an easy grounder to second.

The motors are coming back July 3 and 4. They have warned the locals that McClain will be with them.

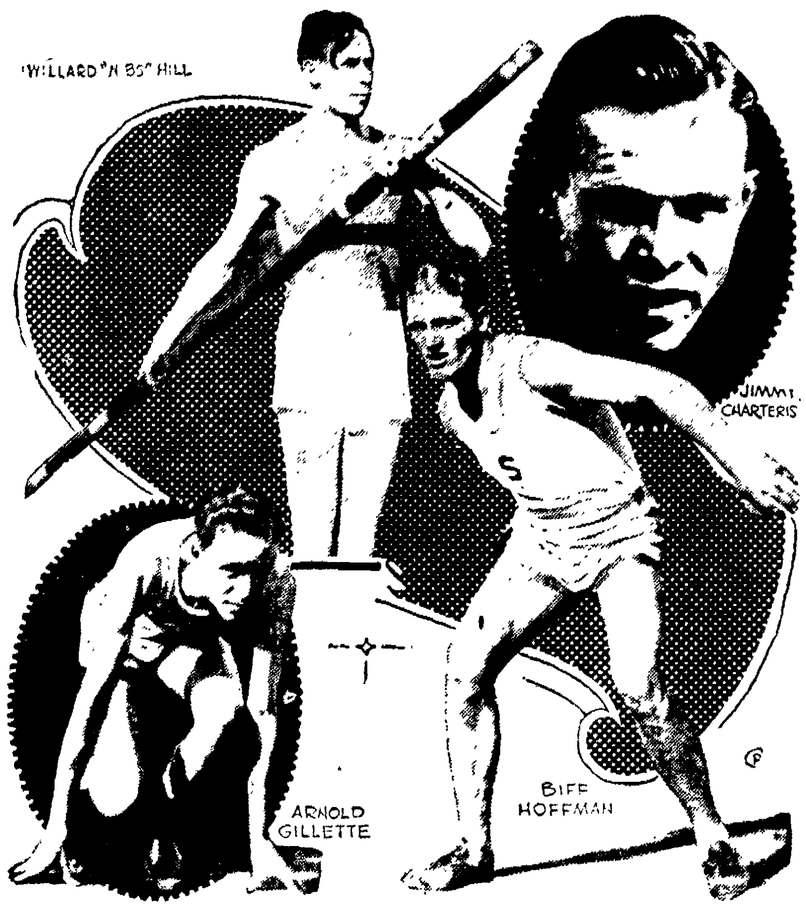
FIRST ALL-PACIFIC MEET DRAWS HUGE ENTRY



The annual Pacific Coast track and field meet, heretofore confined to the nine schools of the conference, is an open affair this year for the first time. Entry lists for the meet June 3 and 4 closed May 28. Thirty colleges have entered teams. Not only sectional but national and world marks are liable to fall due to the pressure of such record holders as Charlie Borah and Lee Barnes and others in the meet. Above are four of the stars entered. Bill Hoffman is a discus star with Stanford, "Nibs" Hill, a pole vaulter with California, Gillette, captain and miler with Montana and Charteris, an 880 yd. star with Washington University.

Jimmy Archer, Former Cub Catcher, Is Pork Yodler

CHICAGO, May 31.—Jimmy Archer, formerly a star catcher for the Chicago Cubs is in training again.

But Archer is not planning a sensational return to the diamond. he's merely preparing to lead Chicago's hog yodlers at the annual free for all, catch-as-you-can pig calling contest to be held this summer at Springfield, Ill.

The former baseball hero denies he learned or perfected his ability at bringing home the annointed bacon in shouting at umpires and admits his childhood days on a midwest farm taught him all he knows about singing to the porkers. Right now Archer is employed at one of the world's biggest packing plants and there he has a chance to study first hand his advancement as a pig caller.

This year new rules will govern the hog calling contest with volume scoring 50 per cent; persuasiveness, 25 per cent, and melody, 25 per cent.

Volume is extremely important in the contest, officials declared, pointing out the first essential is that the pigs hear the callers; persuasiveness is desired so the idea that something delectable is waiting will be properly signaled. As for melody it is argued even a pig has a certain musical sense and a bellow, other than somewhat silver at least, might start the animal over the hill and far away, instead of bringing him shuffling home to the corn.

The Illinois contest this year will be marked with many of the west's best hog yellers, including State Senator Ralph Boyd of Galva and State Senator Harry Wilson of Pinckneyville, a medalist in one of last year's preliminary tests. Last year's winner was Guy Bender and he is reported in extremely good voice this season.

New York, May 31.—Ace Hudkins, "the Nebraska wildcat," is a 6 to 5 favorite to defeat Al Mello of Boston in their 10-round bout here tonight. The bout is a "natural," both fighters being sluggers with a knockout punch. Mello conquered Eddie Roberts, who knocked out Joe Dundee, while Hudkins climaxed a brilliant record in the East by knocking out Ruby Goldstein last summer.

JOHNSON COMES BACK; BLANKS RED SOX, 3-0

Allows Only Three Hits and Does Not Walk Single Batter

New York, May 31—Millions of baseball fans throughout the country are rejoicing today at the brilliant comeback of Walter Johnson, the greatest pitcher of them all. The mound ace of the Washington team, who had been laid up since March with a broken ankle bone, made his season's debut against the Red Sox yesterday in the first game of a double header and turned in an almost perfect performance. He did not walk a batter, allowed only three hits and blanked the Sox 3 to 0.

The big man was starting his twentieth season in the majors and he had the same old zoom speed which made him famous a generation ago. The Senators, their pennant hopes revived, pounded out a 13 to 5 victory in the night cap.

Pittsburgh Loses

Pittsburgh's great winning streak of 11 games was shattered when the Bucs lost to the Cubs, 4 to 6, Jimmy Cooney of the Cubs making an unassisted triple play. The pirates came back like an echo, however, and won the second game 6 to 5 on Harris' single. Both games went 10 innings and Hack Wilson hit his ninth homer tying Cy Williams for National League honors.

Philadelphia moved into first place in the sleepy city by 40,000 fans, got on and off on a Delia morning and saw the Athletics beat the Yankees 9 to 8 as Lefty Grove fanned 11 men. Although the Yanks won the second game 6 to 5 on Babe Ruth's home run in the eleventh, Connie Mack protested the game because a Panted ophan player was not allowed to score from first base after Grabowski had caught a foul fly and had fallen into the Athletics' dugout. The umpires sent the runner back to third base, ruling that the Philadelphia players had prevented Grabowski from getting out of the dugout.

Ruth's Fourteenth

Ruth's home was his fourteenth of the season and he has always caught up with his record-breaking start.

Al Thomas of the White Sox white washed the St. Louis Browns 10 to 0 after Stewart, a rookie, had trimmed the Sox 11 to 3 in the opener.

Cleveland broke even with Detroit. The Indians won the first game 9 to 8 when Owen Carroll took a ballon ride in the ninth while the Tigers made seven runs in the seventh inning of the nightcap and won in a romp, 11 to 3.

Dodgers Win

Father Bill Donk and Jess Barnes of the Dodgers, two-timed the Boston Braves, 5 to 2 and 6 to 2.

The Giants took a 14 to 10 slugfest from the Phillies but in the nightcap, Clarkson, New York Rookie, lost a 1 to 0 duel to the veteran Clarence Mitchell.

The St. Louis Cardinals advanced to within half a game of second place by beating the Reds twice, 6 to 3 and 3 to 1. Haines and Sherdel did the pitching and lots of it. Haines winning his eighth victory of the season.

BUT, in case a number of managers are not aware of the fact, Mr. Rudolph is no longer in official charge of the games. Ed Meredith, manager of the Y. M. C. A. bowling alleys during the winter months, now has that position and is therefore accorded the honor of selecting the umpires.

We saw "Merry" making a will chase over the city Friday when there were only four games to be played in the Commercial League and only four umpires were necessary. Late in the afternoon he was still minus a man for one of the contests although he had seen a number of men and asked them to take the task.

And then, after an umpire is assigned to a game, and everything is lovely, some unsatisfied player or manager wants to know why the management sent out "that guy to umpire."

This department congratulates those who are game enough to umpire a contest and take the razzing, merely for the sake of preserving the league in the city.

The only way in which to better the umpire service would be for the commission to select a regular force of umpires and put them on a salary for the season. And then managers would holler when they had to pay more entrance fee.

If complaints continue as they have this year, some action will have to be taken soon or the recreational ball mixups will get beyond the control of the commission.

New York, May 31—A record total of 360,000 spectators witnessed the Memorial Day baseball games it was estimated today. Philadelphia led with 80,000 and 20,000 others were turned away there. Pittsburgh was second with 60,000, also a record.

Strength of American and British Golf Teams to Be Determined Next Week-End in Ryder Cup Matches

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 31 — Just how much or how little American golf may be entitled to fear from the English invasion of the open golf championship several weeks hence, may be determined over the ensuing week end at Worcester, Mass. The British versus American professional team match for the Ryder cup will be the occasion in question and, while team matches are not always a fool proof barometer of championship abilities, Duncan Boomer Ray, Havers Compston, et al, will have been with us long enough at that juncture to give fair indication of whether their intentions at Oakmont will be strictly honorable.

DAVIS J. WALSH

No open championship in the history of American golf has been more seriously menaced by an invading team, at least in point of reputation and numbers. Vardon and Ray were almost alone at Brookline in 1913 and again at Inverness in 1920. Duncan and Mitchell were about in the same position at Washington in 1921 while other British delegations have been few and fragmentary.

But this time they have concentrated all the good ones with a single exception, on one team and if they don't make a real play for the title at Oakmont this month, the chances are they never will.

Best From England

Abe Mitchell, who remained at home because of illness is the exception in question. The others probably represent the best that British golf can muster on both sides of the Atlantic have succeeded to concede victory to the latter. Spalding admits that he fears the worst. Today local golf critics were disposed to view the situation with equal alarm, their apprehension shaped by the slump of Walter Hagen and others, protracted in the case of Hagen.

The American professional at large will be most anxious to win this one because it will be the first match in which a strictly home bred team has gone to the post. If they can win the English can lay no more exclusive claims on the ground of nativity. If they come, the importance of the fact will be lost sight of, anyhow. The open championship is the thing that counts, as the Heatherites proved last year when their Ryder Cup team won in a walk and then up from the ranks of the professionals came Jones to win the open championship entries just is quite the same manner.

MIAMI NINE DEFEATS CINCINNATI; COPS TITLE

Oxford, O., May 31—The Miami University baseball squad today was celebrating its ninth straight victory of the Buckeye Athletic Association and the undisputed B. A. A. championship for the second consecutive year. A 5 to 2 victory over the Cincinnati Bearcats clinched the title when "Red" Miller, Miami hurler, poled a long double to win his own game in the sixth inning.

They don't come any better
I DIDN'T know it, but Prince Albert was just the tobacco I had been looking for all the time. I hate to think of the time we lost getting together. But let that go. We're all set now—me and the pipe and P.A. We've been pals from the very first puff.
I had a hunch I was going to like P.A. the minute I got that breath of Nature's noblest gift to pipe-smokers. What a treat! It made me think of a hike through the woods, when the trees and the vines are in full leaf. It found the taste "an adventure" by the ounce.
Cool as a customs-inspector. Sweet as the thought you have nothing to hide. Mild as a milk-shake, yet with that full-bodied flavor that satisfies your smoke-taste right down to the ground. That's Prince Albert, Fellows. They don't come any better.

BAD WEATHER IS FELT IN LUMBER BUSINESS

Sales Held Down by Persistent Unstable Conditions, Survey Shows

In its weekly review of the market, the American Lumberman, Chicago, says:

Total national sales of lumber are held down by persistent bad weather in the middle West. In this extensive region, country demand especially is kept from developing because roads are in no condition for hauling, nor can outdoor work be undertaken. In any event, farmers have been able to give little thought to building, there being reports that some of them work all night when the ground is dry enough to permit seeding to be done.

Despite all handicaps, building permits issued in 25 leading cities of the country during April showed a loss of only 10 per cent from the totals for April of last year. But those cities have in plan an immense volume of construction, as permits for the first three months of the year exceeded those issued in the corresponding period of last year, and the difficulty of going ahead with this work of course slows down the taking out of further permits. Total permits issued in 205 leading cities during the first four months of this year were only eight per cent less than those for the same period of last year, and so far this year the totals have always shown a marked tendency to gain ground under the influence of good weather.

Softwood production is still curtailed, the manufacturers seeing the wisdom of avoiding any excess supply, so that market prices have remained firm. While consumer demand is behind normal for this time of year, its gradual seasonal growth is in fact strengthening the weak spots in the market, so that softwood quotations as a whole are safely above the low levels they had reached during spring, though still unsatisfactory to producers. Total softwood sales during the first nineteen weeks of this year exceeded the output weeks of this year exceeded the output by 12 per cent, whereas for the same period of last year the excess of sales above production was only four per cent.

Fail To Give Stepmothers Due Credit

They Must Often Overcome Indifference and Prejudice Against Them

MY mother-in-law always said: "If there is a seat in heaven higher than that of an own mother it should be given to a good stepmother." Her mother died when she was a little girl and a stepmother brought her up, so she knew whereof she spoke.

I think she is right. Love for one's own child comes naturally. But a stepmother must not only learn to love the child but must overcome the child's indifference and often its prejudice against a stepmother. Outsiders, too, often thoughtlessly utter criticisms of a stepmother's words and actions that would never excite interest if they were those of an own mother.

Read Marian's letter and tell me what you think of the situation.

"DEAR Mrs. Lee: I am one of those unfortunate girls who have a stepmother. My own mother died when I was a very little girl. My stepmother is a good woman and I love her and she loves me. But she does not understand me as I yearn so for my own dear mother who would have understood. I have a hot temper and am sometimes impertinent, I know, but am always sorry afterwards. Mother-only, as I have always called her, is so unnecessarily strict with me and I resent it. Father stands up for his wife, so I have no one but outsiders to confide in with me. MARIAN."

My dear Marian, do you never hear of own mothers and daughters, who do not understand one another? It is often the case. My mother-in-law to whom I referred above said that when she was a girl in her teens she used to cry and cry for her own mother, thinking it a great hardship that she had a stepmother. Then suddenly it came to her that her stepmother was just as hard off as she. She had no own child, only children that she had brought up, undertaken to bring up, knowing that her words and acts would often be subjected to criticism because she was a stepmother. You say you love one another. Let that mutual love teach you understanding and sympathy. It is not only the stepmothers who are accused of being too strict. Be so thankful, Marian, that you have someone to care for you and that person is not too lenient.

EILEEN has the heartache because of her "in laws". She says her husband's parents have separated them.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 28 years old and was married at 22. My husband's parents were the cause of our separation three years ago. I love him more than ever. What shall I do? EILEEN

Tell him, O Eileen, and if he is likeminded, make up your minds that no one will part you again.

SAY WINCHESTER, MASS., PUREST TOWN IN U. S.

No Movies, No Booze and No Card Parties Make Good Its Boast

Winchester, Mass., May 31 — The most spotless and purest town in the United States. Thus do residents of this typical New England town refer to their places of abode. The town always took pride in its moral goodness but it was never fully convinced that it held an imposing place among the towns of the commonwealth until the chief of police declared a ban on whist parties at which prizes were offered.

When Chief William R. McIntosh announced that in his opinion public whist parties came under the classification of lotteries, some folks wrestled quietly and others murmured. New England has always had its Blue Laws on the statute books but many of them have never been rigidly enforced. However, in Winchester the book is open for inspection at all times to those who doubt the police chiefs' interpretation.

The town holds a place of distinction in that state because of its refusal to permit moving picture shows. For years the voters have turned down requests for licenses to operate movie shows.

The town is one of the dryest in the entire United States according to the police. Bootleggers, they claim would leave towns, so lonesome for the company of their trade would they become here.

ENGLAND TO SEE FIRST SUN ECLIPSE IN CENTURY

Washington, May 31—A remarkable show under her "big tent" to mark the arrival of summer June 22 is planned by Nature who will have her blooms at her best then. Her sky schedule for June follows:

June 15—Total eclipse of the moon visible in North and South America. In Eastern Standard Time the moon will first dip into the shadow of the earth and partial eclipse will begin at 1:43 a. m. on June 15. The total eclipse will begin at 3:14 a. m.

June 22—Summer begins at 5:22 a. m. Eastern Standard Time when the sun reaches its greatest distance north of the Equator. This will be the longest day of the year in the Northern Hemisphere.

June 26—Approach of the small Fons-Winnecke Comet within three and a half million miles of the earth.

June 29—Total eclipse of the sun. Visible in Alaska (partial) England and Scandinavia. Europe and Northern Africa (partial).

In England and Scandinavia this event is being awaited with great interest. As there has been no total eclipse of the sun visible in any part of England since the year 1724 and none will occur again before the year 1954.

Length of totality is less than a single minute at the most in Northern Wales and England will be less than 30 seconds.

So great has been the increase in the use of powder, lipsticks and rouge among the schoolgirls of Czecho-Slovakia that they are now prohibited by law from using cosmetics.

FIRST LADY LIKES THE CIRCUS

JAPANESE LEAVING U. S. IN INCREASING NUMBERS

Washington, May 31 — Large numbers of Japanese are returning to Japan from the United States according to the Bureau of Immigration, United States Department of Labor. The Bureau says:

"From current statistics it appears that the estimated number of Japanese immigrants who return from the United States to Japan is considerably greater than the number of Japanese emigrants departing for American territory."

The bureau offers no explanation for this return of Japanese to the homeland.

YOUTHFUL CRIMES ON DECREASE, RECORDS SHOW

Percentage of Juveniles Sentenced Drops Four Per Cent in Year

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31 — Figures compiled by the Indiana Board of Charities reveal that crime among youths under 20 is decreasing. Of persons committed to the six Indiana penal institutions in 1925, 24 per cent were under 20 years. During 1926, the percentage had dropped to 20.

On the other hand, the class from 20 to 30 years old, mounted from 32 to 34 per cent.

"There is little indication to confirm the popular opinion that crime is increasing among those of the school age," said John A. Brown, board secretary.

"Youth is adventurous by nature. A decade ago, the boys stole watermelons and fruit in their pranks and fun, but today, due to the large urban population, they are arrested for taking junk, auto tires and other farm agricultural products. These offenses are oftentimes magnified out of proportion."

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF
After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

Sup- ...k were open all the way to ...If I should wait until dusk ...ed me and then enter my ...piace in a hurry I might ...down to the ground and ...ck. I would find out all ...while the field was clear. ...n and there I carried out ...from the very beginning ...oil. Without a bit of trust- ...from the fence to the tree, ...on to the edge with my ...ed over into the hollow, ...just as I had hoped, there ...on which to stand. From that day to now I have used this as a shelter in time of trouble, and not yet has any of the hounds or hunters our to take my life even so much as guessed I was up there. Alas! so the pack is coming back!"

Such a jolly tale was it that Fox had been telling that for some time the Boy had not given a thought to the Dogs. Now, as Cubs gave the warning, he nimbly climbed over the hollow and stood with his bush tailed friend upon the ledge peeping over.

"Better to be upon the safe side," said he. "All we have to do now, should any of the pack look up is to duck our heads. Don't those hounds look foolish running around in circles like that?"

"So the do from a safe distance, but not when you are trying for your life away from them," declared the Fox. "Hullo! That's queer! They are right on the spot where we—I have of talking. They must have passed us not seen. They should have caught the scent, but they are going straight the other way. Why, I ha ve been on the further side of the stone wall the whole day. Now they are leaving along the side of the brook. They are right on the trail there, too. I crossed way down stream early this morning. Look at them now, will you? They are [illegible] about that [illegible] Can it be they think I am [illegible]"

Woof! Woof! Grr! Grr! Bow, wow, wow!

"Certainly the pack must be [illegible] all the [illegible] ing at all!" exclaimed the Boy. "I never hear so many [illegible] at one time. Oh, Cubs, look! That [illegible] the [illegible] the bush and now [illegible] jumped at. Oh [illegible] a rabbit. It's white! I am afraid it is poor little [illegible] those brutes tearing [illegible] cereal are [illegible] quickly when Fox gave an angry [illegible]

"Rabbit nothing!" I know now what those dogs have been [illegible] white and it hasn't been me at [illegible] They haven't given me [illegible] much as a sniff. At last I have discovered what that Two-Legs was doing this morning. I [illegible] stained as an Easter D [illegible] guessed it before. I saw a [illegible] a white bundle on the [illegible] him, and I [illegible] [illegible] behaving strangely [illegible] walked slowly [illegible] in the opposite direction and planted the flat rock. I do believe he covered every square foot of the [illegible] abouts. But I thought it was none of my business, and besides, I have found it never pays to poke my nose into Two-Legs's business, and so I carried off until he had left. But the bundle he was treating behind him was a bag of some seeds, as sure as I'm here. And its scent is stronger than mine. Great brush-tails! That I should ever have lived to be so shamed, and not to [illegible] other Four Foot, either, but just [illegible] a bag of old seeds."

Fox turned toward the Boy and laid a paw upon his arm.

"Say, Boy, make me a promise, will you? If ever you [illegible] another Fox don't tell him that he once followed the trail of [illegible] seeds instead of [illegible]

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN once said: "Creditors are a superstitious sect, great believers of certain days and times. The fewer a man has the better his sleep will be, and the less he will need."

Make The City Loan your sole creditor, where the terms for payment are so much easier. Borrow to pay all of your present bills so that you will have everything in one place. In so doing you remove all barriers from your road to success. You will have a clear way with nothing to hold you back. Your efforts will bring better results, and besides, we are not so very superstitious.

RAILS AND MOTOR SHARES LEAD IN MOVEMENT

Stocks Resume Price-Climbing After Brief Reactionary Period

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks, strong; industrials, firm; domestic bonds, irregular; foreign bonds, irregular; call money 4 ½ per cent; grain, strong; copper, steady; oil, steady; cotton, irregular; rubber, steady; sugar, steady; pig iron, steady; foreign exchange, steady.

New York, May 31—After a brief reactionary period, in which profit taking and professional short selling were absorbed in the same confident tone as in the last two or three weeks, the stock market forged ahead in a new upward price movement today, under the lead of the railroad and motor shares.

A $70,000,000 surplus reserve in the New York City clearing house banks, compared with a deficit of $21,000,000 in the previous week, was evidence aplenty of the improved situation in the money market. Financing of the June interest and dividend payments will require about $500,000,000, but a large share of this money will flow directly back to investment channels, some of it doubtless will add to the store of funds used daily to purchase high grade dividend-paying stocks.

Wall Street's buoyant and confident spirit received plenty of encouraging stimulus in the reports that "big interests" were actively engaged in buying stocks of the country's leading enterprises in the transportation, motor manufacturing, steel, copper, sugar and other representative enterprises. Continuous forward movements of these stocks can be based on only one factor. The buying of stocks for permanent ownership and the removal of the stocks so purchased from speculative channels.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

The after-holiday reaction found markets low on all kinds of green vegetables and fruits this morning. An unusual good pre-holiday business was reported by local dealers in fruits and vegetables. Fresh goods began arriving this morning, however, and well stocked markets by noon were looked for. No change in price was reported by dealers. With an increase in volume of homegrown vegetables, a downward trend is anticipated however.

The fruit market will be livened up this week by the arrival of canning pineapple. While definite prices could not be quoted dealers say the price will range between $1.25 and $2.50 a dozen. This week represents the peak of the pineapple season, dealers say. A drop of five cents in strawberries was reported this morning. The berries now arriving are from the northern part of Kentucky and the southern part of Ohio.

Air Mail Champion

There are other champion flyers in the air mail service besides "Lucky" Lindbergh. This is Capt. Maurice Graham, flying the mail between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, Utah, who flew 125,000 miles in one month, a world's record for any similar period. During that time he never failed to start on schedule nor was he forced down.

INDIANA BONE DRY LAW ALSO PUNISHES DRINKERS

Indianapolis, May —If you drink in Indiana, don't admit it. For admission of having imbibed makes one liable to conviction for violation of the state bone dry law.

Judge James A. Collins of Marion County Criminal Court thus ruled recently in refusing to permit a witness to reply to a question whether he had been drinking "quite heavily" prior to a certain event.

"Should the witness reply in the affirmative, he would incriminate himself under the Wright bone-dry law and under the constitution, he cannot be compelled to incriminate himself," Judge Collins ruled.

Nevertheless, sellers of malt and other beer-making compounds continue to conduct extensive advertising campaigns here.

JOHN KURTZ, 25, GOES ON TRIAL IN LOCAL COURT

Second of Eight Men Indicted in Farm Thefts Up for Hearing

John Kurts, 25, went on trial in the court of common pleas this morning on an indictment charging him with grand larceny and receiving and concealing stolen property. He is the second of the eight men indicted as members of Marion County's farm robber band to face trial. James Henry, 20, was found guilty last week of participation in the robberies.

Kurts was indicted in connection with the theft of 90 chickens valued at $125 from Ernest Jerew of near Essex on the night of April 29 and also theft of 25 hogs, valued at $250, from the Otis Johnson farm near Agosta, on May 4. He is being tried only for the Johnson robbery.

Shortly after the trial got under way, Attorney Lease of Kenton, representing Kurts, made a motion to exclude Kurts' alleged confession from the record of evidence. The motion was overruled by Judge Scofield.

The same ruling was given when an effort was made to exclude Henry's confession in his trial last week.

Seven Sign, Claim

Seven of the men taken into custody in the round-up of alleged farm robberies several weeks ago are said to have signed confessions. The only one of the eight who refused to confess was W. C. "Shorty" Longfellow, of Laltue, who will go on trial Wednesday.

The Kurts trial was expected to be concluded this afternoon. The jury in the Henry case returned a verdict of guilty after being out only 35 minutes.

The list of farm robbery suspects under arrest was increased to nine Sunday morning when Cecil Holcomb, 21, was taken into custody at the home of a relative on Roma-st by Sheriff James A. Deal and Deputy Sheriff Vane Jreland. He is held at the city prison for investigation.

Holcomb, officers say, had been sought since the sheriff started the round-up of suspects early this month.

Pleads Guilty

Raymond Needles, indicted by the last grand jury on charges of carrying concealed weapons and receiving a stolen automobile, pleaded guilty to the concealed weapon charge when arraigned before Judge Scofield, this morning. He had previously pleaded not guilty. He will be sentenced later.

Needles was arrested with Pearl McAdams in connection with the theft of an automobile from Safety Director W. B. Strayer. McAdams pleaded guilty and is now serving a term in the Mansfield reformatory.

Files Answer

Clara F. Shank, plaintiff in a divorce suit against Barney Shank, today filed a reply to the answer and cross petition filed last week by her husband, in which he asked for divorce and alimony.

Through her attorney, Louis E. Myers, Mrs. Shank denies that Shank has any valid claim against the residence property in which she is living at 155 N. Vine-st. She asks that he be barred from any interest in the property, that his cross petition be dismissed and that she be granted divorce and alimony.

Shank in his cross petition alleged that he is practically without funds as the result of payments made to his wife and the purchase of property turned over to her. The Vine-st property is included in the list, he said.

Mrs. Shank admits that she filed two other suits for divorce in the Ashland County court before they moved to Marion County and that she withdrew both actions when Shank promised to treat her with proper kindness and consideration. He failed to fulfill his promise, she asserts.

She alleges that Shank has bonds and money in excess of $3,500 and that some of this has been placed in the name of his child by a former marriage for the purpose of defrauding Mrs. Shank and preventing her from collecting alimony.

Shank was 66 years of age and Mrs. Shank 46 at the time of their marriage.

Entry Copy Filed

Copy of an entry made in the probate court of Fairfield County, declaring the estate of Siff Cox insolvent, was filed in the court of common pleas here today in connection with the suit of Amos P. Cox against Susie B. Codding and others, an action brought to partition the estate of Pryor Cox. Catherine Cox was named by the Fairfield County probate judge to act as commissioner in receiving claims against the Siff Cox estate.
